Soviets Offer Outer Space Concessions

U.S. Says New Proposal Might End Stalemate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Soviet Union submitted a new proposal on outer space to the United Nations Tuesday. It went a long way toward meeting the position of the United States and breaking an East-West deadlock.

Soviet Dep. Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin placed the new proposal before the 81-nation Political Committee. It had these important elements:

1. It dropped previous Soviet demands that abolition of U.S. overseas military bases be tied in with the question of international control of outer space.

2. It proposed the creation of a 11-nation study group to prepare the groundwork for a permanent U.N. committee for cooperation in the study of outer space for peaceful purposes.

Lodge Welcomes Proposal

This came very close to a proposal being pushed by the United States, Britain and 18 other powers for creation of a special committee to study all aspects of this problem.

Zorin showed the new proposal to U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge at a private conference prior to its presentation to the Political Committee.

Lodge welcomed it as "a sign that the Soviet Union may be willing to cooperate in some peaceful endeavor in outer space."

Lodge told the committee the Soviet proposal was being referred to Washington for study. He said "it looks as though progress has been recorded today."

No "Precedent" For Geneva

But Zorin made clear at a news conference that Soviet concessions to the United States here did not signify any willingness to make similar moves in Geneva. Talks are in progress there on ending nuclear weapons tests, and on working out methods for detecting surprise attack.

In response to a question, Zorin said the Soviet Union has a "perfectly legitimate right" to continue nuclear tests during the Geneva talks. He reiterated Soviet insistence upon agreement to end tests "for all time."

He said also the Soviet Union would continue to press for abolition of U.S. overseas bases, and a ban on sending military missiles into outer space. He indicated this might be done in the newly expanded 81-nation U.N. Disarmament Commission.

West Strives To Keep Geneva Parleys Going

GENEVA (UPI)—The West made a major procedural concession to the Soviets Tuesday to try to break the deadlock over a nuclear weapons test ban.

At the same time, the United States sought to keep alive the equally-deadlocked Geneva conference on ways to prevent surprise attack by offering for discussion a list of modern weapons that could be used to launch an atomic-age Pearl Harbor. The theory was that the list might form a basis for work on technical ways of preventing surprise attack. The Russians have insisted that the talks discuss cold war problems in general.

Sources said both conferences remained as bogged down as ever.

At the nuclear test ban conference, the American, British and Soviet delegates met in secret. U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth, British Minister of State David Ormsby-Gore and Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin were accompanied by a limited number of advisers at the 70-minute informal meeting.

The West proposed to discuss "concurrently" a test ban and control system to police it, but held that both agreements must be included in a single treaty. The Soviets, however, held firm to their refusal to discuss control agreement in principle has been reached to ban nuclear tests "forever."

The proposal will be formally submitted when the nuclear conference resumes Wednesday and the Soviets are expected to formally reject it then.

At the surprise attack talks, the Russians reserved their reply until Wednesday on the Western weapon list. But there was little doubt that the proposal will be turned down, too. One Communist source ridiculed the list as "a type of book you can find in any bazaar anywhere."

Abboud Forms Sudan Cabinet

CAIRO (AP) — Gen. Ibrahim Abboud assumed Sudan's premiership Tuesday as a strong man with full legislative, executive and judicial powers.

The 58-year-old army commander, reputed to be moderate politically, formed a 12-man Cabinet dominated by military officers to take over rule of that East African nation from Abdullah Khalil's deposed pro-Western regime.

Paralleling this was the formation of a military council of 13 officers — with Abboud as chairman. It becomes the high command of the British-trained armed forces, 12,000 strong.

"The head of the high command of the armed forces is the supreme power in Sudan," said a decree broadcast by the radio at Khartoum, the Sudanese capital.

Abboud's asumption of full powers in the legislative, executive and judicial fields was disclosed in connection with the creation of the Cabinet. The Cabinet is made up of five civilians, none previously prominent in Sudanese political affairs, and seven officers.

Abboud will serve as his own defense minister.

Dulles Rules Out Shifting Basic Policy

Security Efforts Would Collapse, Secretary Says

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles told critics Tuesday night that this country would not change its basic foreign policies to appease its enemies or curry favor with its friends.

Dulles, in an obvious reply to those who have termed his policies "inflexible, warned that this country's collective security efforts "would surely collapse if our free world associates felt that they were tied to policies which shifted under the dictates of passing considerations . . ."

Dulles called for a "spiritual redemption of our nation" to give it the strength to stand fast against Communist imperialism. He said the Soviet rulers eventually must grant their people more freedom or face violent revolt.

Dulles, Ike Review Policies

Dulles addressed a world order study conference of the National Council of Churches of Christ.

Before leaving Washington, the secretary met with President Eisenhower at the White House for an extensive review of U.S. policies abroad, including Soviet efforts to push the Western Allies out of Berlin and East-West conferences on nuclear test suspension and prevention of surprise attack at Geneva.

He told reporters at Washington National Airport that he had not abandoned hope for some progress at Geneva despite the present stalemate. He said U.S. representatives would keep pushing ahead at the Geneva talks.

"Steadfast For Right"

In his speech here, Dulles warned that "nothing could be more dangerous than to operate on the theory that if hostile and evil forces do not readily change, it is always we who must change to accommodate them."

"Communism is stubborn for the wrong," he said. "Let us be steadfast for the right."

In resisting immoral changes on the world front, Dulles said, "let us make our opposition not just a barren negative but a positive alternative."

Bulganin May Have Lost Job

MOSCOW (UPI)—Former Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin has been removed from his down-graded economic post in the remote city of Stavropol since his denunciation for "anti-party" activities, diplomatic sources reported Tuesday.

There was no information concerning his future or his actual whereabouts now.

The sources said the former premier, who was ousted in March, 1957, when Nikita s. Khrushchev took over the premiership, lost his post as chairman of the local Economic Council in Stavropol, located in the North Caucasus.

He had been dispatched to Stavropol last summer after being quietly demoted from the chairmanship of the state bank, a ministerial post he received when Khrushchev became premier.

At a meeting of the Central Party Committee attended by Khrushchev, Bulganin for the first time was linked publicly to the "anti-party" clique of Malenkov, Molotov and Kaganovich, the three deputy premiers who were ousted in disgrace in July, 1957.

Mice Make Trip In Space, Only To Die In Atlantic

NEW YORK (AP)—Two white mice — probably the highest flying space travelers to date—returned to earth alive only to die in the Atlantic Ocean, a woman scientist said Tuesday.

The mice — named Laska and Benji—rode Air Force rockets up through the earth's atmosphere to a height of some 1,400 miles.

Both spanned some 6,000 miles of the earth's surface in about 45 minutes. Both traveled better than 15,000 miles an hour.

And both survived the red hot re-entry into the earth's atmosphere again and the parachute drop down to the ocean.

"There is every reason to believe that both Laska and Benji would have been recovered alive after their flights if the nose cones had been retrieved," said Miss Franki L. van der Wal.

She made her report to a meeting of the American Rocket Society.

99.6 Per Cent Majority

BUDAPEST (AP) — Communist-backed candidates in Hungary's election—the only set on the ballot—won a majority of 99.6 per cent, it was announced Tuesday.

Norfolk Voters Prefer Keeping Schools Closed

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI)—The city of Norfolk, where 10,000 children have lost their schools to avoid integration, voted three-to-two Tuesday to keep six schools closed rather than open them on an integrated basis.

Voters in this sprawling port city cast 12,658 ballots against petitioning Gov. J. Lindsay Almond to return to six schools to local control so they could be reopened and integrated, and 8,781 for the proposal.

One factor believed to have influenced the vote was another Virginia "massive resistance" law which would move in if the schools were integrated and cut off all state funds.

Each ballot contained a footnote reminding voters of the fund cutoff law and saying a "substantial tuition for each child" would be charged if the schools opened.

The referendum, called by Norfolk's City Council, was for informational purposes only and its results are not binding on the city or state. However, five of the seven council members indicated beforehand that they would follow the verdict of the voters.

Sunny, almost springlike weather brought only 21,439 voters to the polls, about 1,000 less than voted in the general election Nov. 4, when Norfolk gave Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.), architect of the laws which shut down the schools, a nearly two-thirds majority.

The referendum was the first expression of mass sentiment on the question of reopening and integrating schools which are closed under Virginia laws that automatically shut down schools ordered to integrate.

The feeling expressed in the voting probably will give a considerable boost to state policy, which now is to give the governor complete control of schools which close under desegregation orders.

Treasury To Offer Notes At Discount

WASHINGTON (AP)—The treasury announced Tuesday it will offer notes and certificates at a discount—an unprecedented step—in exchange for $12,200,000,000 of maturing debt issues.

The department also said it will raise $2,600,000,000 of new money during the next three months through a revamping of its weekly auction of treasury bills.

The securities which will be offered to holders of certificates and bonds maturing next month are:

1. An 11½-month certificate priced to yield 3.43 per cent.

2. A two-year, 5½-month note priced to yield 3.68 per cent.

Girl, 13, Admits Rape Story Untrue

ESSEX, Md. (AP) — A 13-year-old girl has admitted that her story about being raped by a youth who broke into her home is untrue, Baltimore County police said Tuesday night.

Detective Lt. John L. Allander said the young girl admitted the story was a fake under questioning.

He said about the only thing true in her story was that someone had broken a window pane.

Soviets Charge U.S. Using West Berlin As Espionage Center

BERLIN (AP)—The Soviet Union Tuesday stepped up the campaign to get the Allies out of West Berlin. The Soviets accused the United States of using the isolated, old German capital as a spy center.

The Soviet Embassy in East Berlin summoned its first news conference in four years to assert that West Berlin is a hotbed of anti-Soviet espionage.

The charges came on the heels of a warning in Moscow by Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, that the Soviet Union will end the four-power occupation of Berlin—with or without Western consent.

In the past week, the Soviet Union has repeatedly claimed the Allies have violated the spirit of occupation agreements and should get out of West Berlin, an island inside Soviet-run East Germany.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said last week the Soviets are giving up their occupation rights in East Berlin and advised the Allies to do the same.

The idea was developed Tuesday at the 2½-hour news conference, attended by 300 Western and Communist newsmen.

A reporter for Tass, the Soviet news agency, asked what anti-Soviet activities were being carried out in West Berlin.

J V.. Beburov, first secretary of the Soviet Embassy who was conducting the news conference, turned the question over to a former Soviet army officer who allegedly deserted to the West but later decided he wanted to go back home.

The officer, I. V. Ovchinnikov, got up in the glare of Communist television lights and charged: "The territory of West Berlin is being used for subversive activities against the German Democratic (East Germany) and the Soviet Union."

He said much of the activity stems from NTS, an anti-Soviet organization of Soviet emigres. With American backing, they are using West Berlin as a base for a clandestine radio station, a printing plant and the launching of balloons carrying leaflets, Ovchinnikov said.

His remarks were seconded by another Russian who identified himself as V. S. Ilyinski, an acrobat who deserted the Moscow state circus while it toured Western Europe in 1956.

Both said that after their desertions, the West German police had turned them over to American intelligence agents who wanted to train them as anti-Soviet spies.

Gomez Resigns Argentine Post

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Alejandro Gomez quit as vice president Tuesday in a tearful, emotion-charged ceremony in the Argentine Senate chamber.

He had been under fire for a week, accused of leading a plot against President Arturo Frondizi.

Gomez, who denied any part in a move to unseat Frondizi, said his resignation was irrevocable.

A 50-year-old lawyer and former school teacher, Gomez was named vice president last February in Argentina's first free election after the 1955 overthrow of Juan Peron's dictatorship.

The resignation had been expected since the government said it thwarted a plot last Wednesday.

Pan Am 707 Jet Beats Comet IV In Informal Race

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pan American World Airways won an informal transatlantic jet air race with the British Tuesday.

A big Pan American 707 jet carrying 110 passengers swooped down to a landing at Idlewild International Airport 11 minutes before a British Overseas Airways Corporation Comet IV that had left London with a 36-minute head start.

Both planes encountered mechanical problems during refueling stops at Gander, Newfoundland, with Pan American suffering the longest delay.

The four-jet 707 made the trip in a total elapsed time of 9 hours, 9 minutes, with 7 hours, 27 minutes in the air. It was a total of 47 minutes faster than the BOAC plane.

The Comet's elapsed time was 9 hours, 56 minutes, with 8 hours, 20 minutes in the air.

For The Future

Ike Assures Flier's Son Academy Appointment

WASHINGTON (AP)—Iven Kincheloe III, now 19½ months old, can be pretty sure of attending the Air Force Academy, if he wants to, in 15 or so years from now.

President Eisenhower wrote a letter "to the president of the United States in 1972-1976" asking him to consider giving the youngster an academy appointment. The letter was made public Tuesday.

The child is the son of space pioneering Capt. Iven C. Kincheloe Jr., who was killed last July while testing an experimental F104 near Edwards Air Force Base in California. He was piloting this more conventional plane while preparing to fly the Air Force space-traveling X15.

Kincheloe already had flown higher than any other man—126,200 feet. He did that on Sept. 7, 1956, in the X2, a forerunner of the X15.

The captain had been selected to make the first flights in the X15, a plane expected to reach an altitude of 100 miles and a speed of 3,500 miles an hour.

Eisenhower gave a copy of his letter to Kincheloe's widow, an attractive brunette from Oakland, Calif. A duplicate of the letter went to the National Archives for filing.

Kincheloe, who was 30 at the time of his death, was a Korean War veteran credited with downing five Communist planes.

In addition to his son, he is survived by a 7-week-old daughter, Jeannine.

Fall Blizzard Moves Across Canada Border

By The Associated Press

The big fall blizzard whipped across the northern Midwest Tuesday and then blew across the border to Canada.

The Dakotas and the Red River Valley in northwestern Minnesota caught the tail end lash of the storm.

The blizzard, although easing off in North Dakota, left almost all the highways blocked in the eastern half of the state. The snow blanket ranged up to 11 inches.

Fresh snow measured up to a foot in depth in South Dakota. Some roads were blocked in the northeastern section of the state.

The heavy snow in Minnesota was concentrated in the Red River Valley.

Snow was limited to the western half of Nebraska. The fall measured up to 13 inches at Medicine Creek Dam in the southwestern part of the state. Other areas got about five inches.

As the storm center moved into western Ontario strong, cold winds blew across the northern half of the nation from Montana and Wyoming eastward to the Great Lakes region.

At least 10 deaths were attributed to one of the earliest blizzards in Weather Bureau history. Traffic accidents took three lives in Missouri, two in Colorado and one in South Dakota. Heart attacks in the snow caused two deaths in Oklahoma. High winds resulted in one fatality in Texas and another in Oklahoma.

The storm that began late last week dumped snow on a vast area that reached from Idaho, Utah and Arizona northeastward to Minnesota.

Sharp cold covered much of the western half of the country.

The cold front moved eastward across the Mississippi River.

Record-breaking frosts caused crop losses running into the millions in California.

No Survivors Of 35 Aboard Vessel Found

Freighter Feared Lost With All Hands In Lake Michigan

CHARLEVOIX, Mich. (AP) — A cargo carrier with a crew of 35 was missing and believed sunk with all hands Tuesday night in stormy Lake Michigan.

A rescue ship at the last position given by the distressed vessel, the 615-foot Carl D. Bradley, said it could find no sign of survivors in the area.

In a report to the Marine Radio Station at Port Washington, Wis., the captain of the German motorship Christian Sartori said:

"I believe all hands are lost. No life boats are visibile."

Roy Brunette, operator of the Marine Radio Station, quoted the captain as saying he found only a floating tank and something believed to be a raincoat. The master reported that the condition of the tank indicated there had been an explosion.

Surface vessels and aircraft of the U.S. Coast Guard fought gale winds in an effort to locate the scene as the storm still raged on the huge lake.

50-60 Mile Winds

The Bradley, owned by the Bradley Transportation Co. of Rogers City, Mich., a unit of U.S. Steel Corp., reportedly went down shortly before 6 p.m. off Gull Island 38 miles north of here.

Winds of 50 to 60 miles an hour lashed the lake during the day.

The Coast Guard stations at Port Huron, on Lake Huron far to the south, and at Manistique, Mich., reported the Bradley had gone down. The Manistique station said the vessel hit Boulder Reef, west of Beaver Island.

Brunette said he received a wireless message from the Bradley at 5:33 p.m. (EST) which said: "We've broken in half, we're going down."

At Detroit, the Michigan Limestone Division of U.S. Steel said it was informed the Bradley was in trouble and "possibly sunk."

The Charlevoix Coast Guard said it would make no statement until it had "positive information" about the ship.

An amphibious plane with a helicopter and supplies flew out from the Traverse City Coast Guard station to join in the vast rescue attempt.

Lake Danger Spot

Boulder Reef, a danger spot of the lake, is due west of the south end of Beaver Island. The island is about a third of the way out in the lake from west Michigan.

The Charlevoix station reported it was sending out all possible boats and men.

Chief W.O. Joseph Etienne, commander of the Charlevoix station, said at 7:30 p. m. "We have no way of knowing what happened." He said radio contact with the Bradley was lost at 5:45 p. m.

The first report of the Bradley's trouble came from a ham radio operator at Escanaba in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

Both Sides Rest In Fugate Case

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—A jury of seven men and five women Tuesday received the last of the evidence on which they will decide whether Caril Ann Fugate lives or dies.

Counsel for the 15-year-old Lincoln schoolgirl, accused of first-degree murder for helping boy friend Charles Starkweather, 19, on an 11-death murder spree last winter, rested its case Tuesday morning.

The state rested an hour and a half later.

Judge Harry Spencer scheduled closing arguments by the attorneys for Wednesday. Then, he said, he would issue his instructions to the jury and deliberations by the jurors will begin on Thursday.

Battered Quemoy's Schools Reopening

TAIPEI (AP)—A back-to-school movement began on battered Quemoy Tuesday as Communist artillery remained silent on the nearby mainland.

One school already was opened, the first since the Reds opened heavy cannonading Aug. 23. All primary schools are to reopen Thursday when shelters for teachers and pupils will have been completed.

Thursday will be an even-numbered day. The Reds under their curious pattern of warfare are withholding fire against the islands on even-numbered days.

Norfolk Voters Prefer Keeping Schools Closed

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI)—The city of Norfolk, where 10,000 children have lost their schools to avoid integration, voted three - to - two Tuesday to keep six schools closed rather than open them on an integrated basis.

Voters in this sprawling port city cast 12,658 ballots against petitioning Gov. J. Lindsay Almond to return to six schools to local control so they could be reopened and integrated, and 8,781 for the proposal.

One factor believed to have influenced the vote was another Virginia "massive resistance" law which would move in if the schools were integrated and cut off all state funds.

Each ballot contained a footnote reminding voters of the fund cutoff law and saying a "substantial tuition for each child" would be charged if the schools opened.

The referendum, called by Norfolk's City Council, was for informational purposes only and its results are not binding on the city or state. However, five of the seven council members indicated beforehand that they would follow the verdict of the voters.

Sunny, almost springlike weather brought only 21,439 voters to the polls, about 1,000 less than voted in the general election Nov. 4, when Norfolk gave Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.), architect of the laws which shut down the schools, a nearly two-thirds majority.

The referendum was the first expression of mass sentiment on the question of reopening and integrating schools which are closed under Virginia laws that automatically shut down schools ordered to integrate.

The feeling expressed in the voting probably will give a considerable boost to state policy, which now is to give the governor complete control of schools which close under desegregation orders.

Treasury To Offer Notes At Discount

WASHINGTON (AP)—The treasury announced Tuesday it will offer notes and certificates at a discount—an unprecedented step—in exchange for $12,200,000,000 of maturing debt issues.

The department also said it will raise $2,600,000,000 of new money during the next three months through a revamping of its weekly auction of treasury bills.

The securities which will be offered to holders of certificates and bonds maturing next month are:

1. An 11½ - month certificate priced to yield 3.43 per cent.

2. A two-year, 5½-month note priced to yield 3.68 per cent.

Girl, 13, Admits Rape Story Untrue

ESSEX, Md. (AP) — A 13-year-old girl has admitted that her story about being raped by a youth who broke into her home is untrue, Baltimore County police said Tuesday night.

Detective Lt. John L. Allander said the young girl admitted the story was a fake under questioning.

He said about the only thing true in her story was that someone had broken a window pane.

Soviets Charge U.S. Using West Berlin As Espionage Center

BERLIN (AP)—The Soviet Union Tuesday stepped up the campaign to get the Allies out of West Berlin. The Soviets accused the United States of using the isolated, old German capital as a spy center.

The Soviet Embassy in East Berlin summoned its first news conference in four years to assert that West Berlin is a hotbed of anti-Soviet espionage.

The charges came on the heels of a warning in Moscow by Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, that the Soviet Union will end the four-power occupation of Berlin—with or without Western consent.

In the past week, the Soviet Union has repeatedly claimed the Allies have violated the spirit of occupation agreements and should get out of West Berlin, an island inside Soviet-run East Germany.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said last week the Soviets are giving up their occupation rights in East Berlin and advised the Allies to do the same.

The idea was developed Tuesday at the 2½-hour news conference, attended by 300 Western and Communist newsmen.

A reporter for Tass, the Soviet news agency, asked what anti-Soviet activities were being carried out in West Berlin.

J V.. Beburov, first secretary of the Soviet Embassy who was conducting the news conference, turned the question over to a former Soviet army officer who allegedly deserted to the West but later decided he wanted to go back home.

The officer, I. V. Ovchinnikov, got up in the glare of Communist television lights and charged: "The territory of West Berlin is being used for subversive activities against the German Democratic (East Germany) and the Soviet Union."

He said much of the activity stems from NTS, an anti-Soviet organization of Soviet emigres. With American backing, they are using West Berlin as a base for a clandestine radio station, a printing plant and the launching of balloons carrying leaflets, Ovchinnikov said.

His remarks were seconded by another Russian who identified himself as V. S. Ilyinski, an acrobat who deserted the Moscow state circus while it toured Western Europe in 1956.

Both said that after their desertions, the West German police had turned them over to American intelligence agents who wanted to train them as anti-Soviet spies.

Pan Am 707 Jet Beats Comet IV In Informal Race

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pan American World Airways won an informal transatlantic jet air race with the British Tuesday.

A big Pan American 707 jet carrying 110 passengers swooped down to a landing at Idlewild International Airport 11 minutes before a British Overseas Airways Corporation Comet IV that had left London with a 36-minute head start.

Both planes encountered mechanical problems during refueling stops at Gander, Newfoundland, with Pan American suffering the longest delay.

The four-jet 707 made the trip in a total elapsed time of 9 hours, 9 minutes, with 7 hours, 27 minutes in the air. It was a total of 47 minutes faster than the BOAC plane.

The Comet's elapsed time was 9 hours, 56 minutes, with 8 hours, 20 minutes in the air.

Gomez Resigns Argentine Post

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Alejandro Gomez quit as vice president Tuesday in a tearful, emotion-charged ceremony in the Argentine Senate chamber.

He had been under fire for a week, accused of leading a plot against President Arturo Frondizi.

Gomez, who denied any part in a move to unseat Frondizi, said his resignation was irrevocable.

A 50-year-old lawyer and former school teacher, Gomez was named vice president last February in Argentina's first free election after the 1955 overthrow of Juan Peron's dictatorship.

The resignation had been expected since the government said it thwarted a plot last Wednesday.

Tot Falls 20 Feet, Escapes With 'Shiner'

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—When the mercury hit the 80's, Mrs. Paul Ackerman opened a window to let in a breeze.

Instead, she let her 21-month-old daughter out.

Sandra slithered between window bars Monday and tumbled 20 feet to a brick sidewalk.

She escaped with a black eye.

Pilot Flees To Italy

ANCONA, Italy (AP)—A Yugoslav air force pilot broke away from a patrol in the air Tuesday and fled to Italy, asking political asylum.

Sgt. Slavko Vukelic, 23, landed at the military airfield at Falconara in a two-engine British-built Mosquito.

For The Future

Ike Assures Flier's Son Academy Appointment

WASHINGTON (AP)—Iven Kincheloe III, now 19½ months old, can be pretty sure of attending the Air Force Academy, if he wants to, in 15 or so years from now.

President Eisenhower wrote a letter "to the president of the United States in 1972-1976" asking him to consider giving the youngster an academy appointment. The letter was made public Tuesday.

The child is the son of space pioneering Capt. Iven C. Kincheloe Jr., who was killed last July while testing an experimental F104 near Edwards Air Force Base in California. He was piloting this more conventional plane while preparing to fly the Air Force space-traveling X15.

Kincheloe already had flown higher than any other man—126,200 feet. He did that on Sept. 7, 1956, in the X2, a forerunner of the X15.

The captain had been selected to make the first flights in the X15, a plane expected to reach an altitude of 100 miles and a speed of 3,500 miles an hour.

Eisenhower gave a copy of his letter to Kincheloe's widow, an attractive brunette from Oakland, Calif. A duplicate of the letter went to the National Archives for filing.

Kincheloe, who was 30 at the time of his death, was a Korean War veteran credited with downing five Communist planes.

In addition to his son, he is survived by a 7-week-old daughter, Jeannine.

Fall Blizzard Moves Across Canada Border

By The Associated Press

The big fall blizzard whipped across the northern Midwest Tuesday and then blew across the border to Canada.

The Dakotas and the Red River Valley in northwestern Minnesota caught the tail end lash of the storm.

The blizzard, although easing off in North Dakota, left almost all the highways blocked in the eastern half of the state. The snow blanket ranged up to 11 inches.

Fresh snow measured up to a foot in depth in South Dakota. Some roads were blocked in the northeastern section of the state.

The heavy snow in Minnesota was concentrated in the Red River Valley.

Snow was limited to the western half of Nebraska. The fall measured up to 13 inches at Medicine Creek Dam in the southwestern part of the state. Other areas got about five inches.

As the storm center moved into western Ontario strong, cold winds blew across the northern half of the nation from Montana and Wyoming eastward to the Great Lakes region.

At least 10 deaths were attributed to one of the earliest blizzards in Weather Bureau history. Traffic accidents took three lives in Missouri, two in Colorado and one in South Dakota. Heart attacks in the snow caused two deaths in Oklahoma. High winds resulted in one fatality in Texas and another in Oklahoma.

The storm that began late last week dumped snow on a vast area that reached from Idaho, Utah and Arizona northeastward to Minnesota.

Sharp cold covered much of the western half of the country.

The cold front moved eastward across the Mississippi River.

Record-breaking frosts caused crop losses running into the millions in California.

No Survivors Of 35 Aboard Vessel Found

Freighter Feared Lost With All Hands In Lake Michigan

CHARLEVOIX, Mich. (AP) — A cargo carrier with a crew of 35 was missing and believed sunk with all hands Tuesday night in stormy Lake Michigan.

A rescue ship at the last position given by the distressed vessel, the 615-foot Carl D. Bradley, said it could find no sign of survivors in the area.

In a report to the Marine Radio Station at Port Washington, Wis., the captain of the German motorship Christian Sartori said:

"I believe all hands are lost. No life boats are visibile."

Roy Brunette, operator of the Marine Radio Station, quoted the captain as saying he found only a floating tank and something believed to be a raincoat. The master reported that the condition of the tank indicated there had been an explosion.

Surface vessels and aircraft of the U.S. Coast Guard fought gale winds in an effort to locate the scene as the storm still raged on the huge lake.

50-60 Mile Winds

The Bradley, owned by the Bradley Transportation Co. of Rogers City, Mich., a unit of U.S. Steel Corp., reportedly went down shortly before 6 p.m. off Gull Island 38 miles north of here.

Winds of 50 to 60 miles an hour lashed the lake during the day.

The Coast Guard stations at Port Huron, on Lake Huron far to the south, and at Manistique, Mich., reported the Bradley had gone down. The Manistique station said the vessel hit Boulder Reef, west of Beaver Island.

Brunette said he received a wireless message from the Bradley at 5:33 p.m. (EST) which said:

"We've broken in half, we're going down."

At Detroit, the Michigan Limestone Division of U.S. Steel said it was informed the Bradley was in trouble and "possibly sunk."

The Charlevoix Coast Guard said it would make no statement until it had "positive information" about the ship.

An amphibious plane with a helicopter and supplies flew out from the Traverse City Coast Guard station to join in the vast rescue attempt.

Lake Danger Spot

Boulder Reef, a danger spot of the lake, is due west of the south end of Beaver Island. The island is about a third of the way out in the lake from west Michigan.

The Charlevoix station reported it was sending out all possible boats and men.

Chief W.O. Joseph Etienne, commander of the Charlevoix station, said at 7:30 p. m. "We have no way of knowing what happened." He said radio contact with the Bradley was lost at 5:45 p. m.

The first report of the Bradley's trouble came from a ham radio operator at Escanaba in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

Both Sides Rest In Fugate Case

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—A jury of seven men and five women Tuesday received the last of the evidence on which they will decide whether Caril Ann Fugate lives or dies.

Counsel for the 15-year-old Lincoln schoolgirl, accused of first-degree murder for helping boy friend Charles Starkweather, 19, on an 11-death murder spree last winter, rested its case Tuesday morning.

The state rested an hour and a half later.

Judge Harry Spencer scheduled closing arguments by the attorneys for Wednesday. Then, he said, he would issue his instructions to the jury and deliberations by the jurors will begin on Thursday.

Battered Quemoy's Schools Reopening

TAIPEI (AP)—A back-to-school movement began on battered Quemoy Tuesday as Communist artillery remained silent on the nearby mainland.

One school already was opened, the first since the Reds opened heavy cannonading Aug. 23. All primary schools are to reopen Thursday when shelters for teachers and pupils will have been completed.

Thursday will be an even-numbered day. The Reds under their curious pattern of warfare are withholding fire against the islands on even-numbered days.

Evidence Of Lung Cancer, Air Pollution Link Mounts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chief of the U.S. Public Health Service said Tuesday there is mounting circumstantial evidence that polluted air is a cause of lung cancer. He said it also may contribute to higher death rates from other diseases.

The official, Surgeon General Leroy E. Burney, told a national conference on air pollution that prompt steps must be taken to cleanse the air we breath. Although the effort "will cost big money," he said, delay would invite disaster."

Dr. Chauncey D. Leake, assistant dean of the Ohio State University School of Medicine, said air pollution from auto exhausts is as much to blame as cigarets for increasing lung cancer.

Leake, representing the American Association for the Advancement of Science, said the increase in air pollution also is making the earth hotter.

"What will we do if this occurs with gradual melting of the huge polar ice caps, and the gradual rise of our oceans, drowning out still further our shorelines?" he asked.

Leake, Burney and other speakers called on some 1,000 scientific experts and civic leaders attending the sessions to explore methods for reducing air pollution.

Recordings Link Violence To Teamsters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secret tape recordings, scratchy and full of beeps denoting foul language, were played by Senate rackets probers Tuesday to back up charges of Teamsters Union violence in Texas and Louisiana.

Three Teamsters officials listened in stolid silence. They refused to say whether they had anything to do with the alleged bombings, arson, brick-throwing and acid-tossing.

The three stood on Fifth Amendment grounds—that to answer questions might tend to incriminate them.

The three were: Raymond C. Shafer, business manager of Local 657 in San Antonio, Tex., who refused particularly to say whether one of the voices heard on the recordings was his:

R. B. Bunch of Dallas, organizer for the Southern Conference of Teamsters, and

E. F. (Foots) Johnson, business manager of Shreveport, La., Local 658.

The recordings were made by Texas Rangers who said they put a microphone in a room and took down the conversations on Sept. 15, 1955. Beeps were substituted for obscenities and profanity.

Texas Ranger Zeno Smith swore the voices were those of Shafer and Buck (Curly) Owens of Odessa, Tex., who says he used to be a strong arm man for the Teamsters.

Owens testified freely Monday that he had helped in some bombings and that Shafer wanted him to wreck trucks one way or another in labor-management disputes. He also said Shafer once tried to get him to shoot from ambush the son of Roy J. Gilbert, head of Southwestern Motor Transport Inc., of San Antonio.

Shafer refused to say anything about the ambush testimony.

Brown Testifies Shooting Of Cop Was Accidental

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — Johnnie Brown, himself the only defense witness against a charge that he murdered a Salisbury policeman Sept. 6, testified Tuesday that the shooting was an accident.

Brown said his revolver went off accidentally as he was trying to throw it away while under arrest as a forgery suspect. He said he wanted to avoid facing a concealed weapons count in addition to the forgery charge.

"I thought to myself I've got to get rid of that revolver because they probably will charge me with forgery," the 37-year-old Negro testified.

Brown spent more than two hours on the stand after the state rested its case. He is accused of slaying Patrolman Henry T. Stephens in an alley near Salisbury Police Headquarters as Stephens was taking him in as a forgery suspect.

Final arguments will begin at 9:30 Wednesday, and the case is expected to reach the jury of six women and six men by noon.

Cooler Weather To Chase Fog

By The Associated Press

A cool front was expected to move into Maryland Wednesday, sweeping out the fog that has persisted in many areas.

The Weather Bureau said showers would precede the front, entering the state Tuesday night and moving across to the coast Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the "London fog" paralyzed most shipping in the upper Chesapeake Bay and grounded passenger flights out of Baltimore's Friendship International Airport.

A Liberian tanker went aground off Baltimore early Tuesday. Bound for a refinery dock, the Camp Namanu out of Aruba, Netherlands West Indies, had a cargo of oil.

Tugboat attempts to pry the tanker loose were fruitless.

Bomb Threat Closes Another Md. School

BALTIMORE (AP) — Another Baltimore County school was closed Tuesday by a bomb threat.

Officials ordered classes suspended at the North Point Junior High School annex, on Baltimore's northeast outskirts, after an anonymous telephone caller said a bomb had been planted in the building.

A similar precaution was taken Nov. 11 at the Frankling High School at nearby Reisterstown as police searched 1,500 lockers without finding any explosive.

The new threat was received in a telephone call to Sgt. C. F. Huesman at the Bethlehem Steel Co. police station in Sparrows point.

"We closed the school as a precautionary measure, although I am reasonably confident that it is another prank call," said William T. Willis, county assistant school superintendent.

The National Park Service reports that more than 20 million people each year visit the historic sites under its administration.

Joseph McCusker Dies Of Heart Attack

BALTIMORE (AP) — Joseph O'Connell McCusker, who joined the state's service 45 years ago and rose to its No. 1 non-elected financial post, died Monday of a heart attack on his way to work. He was 65.

McCusker had been chief deputy comptroller of Maryland since 1927. He was hired as a clerk in the state treasurer's office in 1913 and five years later moved to the comptroller's office. He had served under seven different governors.

McCusker was approaching the street door to his office building about 8:10 a.m. when he was stricken. Friends said he leaned against the building for a moment, then slumped to the sidewalk. He died of the heart attack before an ambulance could get him to nearby University Hospital.

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday was notified that a total of $26,142.23 in gasoline tax money has been credited to its account for the month of October.

Allocation of $8,451.20 to the various incorporated communities in the county was also listed.

For the county as a whole the gas tax realized was $37,604.10, but $3,010.57 was money expended which exceeded receipts.

On motion of Commissioner William A. Wilson and unanimously adopted, the county agreed to pay the Lonaconing Water Company the sum of $20 per year for maintenance of a fire hydrant near the county garage at Gilmore.

Commissioner Wilkinson said the residents of Gilmore arranged for the fire hydrant as a safety precaution and inasmuch as the county will have its garage protected in case of fire the board should help pay the expense.

The board received two petitions concerning road work.

A large number of residents of the Little Orleans section submitted a petition and rights-of-way for hardsurfacing of a portion of Little Orleans Road.

Each petitioner listed his occupation with railroaders, farmers, teachers and others included. It was stated that the roadway is used by mail trucks, school buses and farmers who haul their produce to market.

The second petition was sent by residents of the Poorbaugh Road asking repairs be made. They stated the roadway is practically impassable.

Changes Are Made At Water Plant

Many of the recommendations in a consulting engineer's report on the Lake Gordon water plant have been placed in operation as the result of recent organizational changes, Water Commissioner G. Ray Light said yesterday.

The statement came as Light released a report compiled by Eugene Y. Hsi of the Robert T. Regester engineering firm in Baltimore which Light and the Mayor and Council had requested last August.

The report covers desirable changes in operation procedure, personnel and necessary future improvements.

The report said many items pertaining to modernization and improvements are urgently needed to ensure a satisfactory water supply both in quality and quantity. Most are holdovers from a 1951 report which were deferred because of lack of funds and are included in the overall estimated total of $290,000 for the improvements.

One of the items which costs $2,000 has been started, Light said. That is the deferred maintenance of filter gauges and clearwell water level indicator. In addition, the second item on the list of improvements needed, motorization of valves and floor stands for the 12 filters estimated to cost $75,000, will be advertised for bids soon, he added.

Other improvements in the order of urgency include a low-lift standby pumping station, $37,000; gate house repair, $10,000; modernization of the chlorination station, $15,000; water level indicators for distribution reservoirs and automation of pumping stations, $11,000; engineering study for future source of water supply, $40,000; and repair of face of Lake Gordon dam, $100,000.

The report said it would be desirable to finance the improvements with one bond issue.

Technical matters concerning the intake structure, operation of fans in the chlorine rooms, use of the upflow basins as simple settling tanks and chlorine residual tests are covered in the report and Light said most of these have been or will be completed.

One recommendation that proper housekeeping be maintained in all buildings brought from Light the statement that "We are in the process of painting the whole thing."

Repair of the face of the Lake Gordon dam as required by the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters and which is the major item of expense in the proposed improvements is not as urgent as other items listed at the present time, the report said.

It added that engineering studies on an additional source of water should be started immediately to serve an expanding Cumberland metropolitan area. Safe yield of the present source during periods of extreme drought is only 14,000,000 gallons daily which could be increased to 16,000,000 by lowlift pumping.

At the time of the inspection, the plant was delivering at the rate of 14,000,000 gallons daily which is close to the present safe yield of the reservoirs. Under normal conditions, the plant is able to deliver 18,000,000 gallons daily which is plant capacity.

DAV Liquor License Is Suspended

The Allegany County Board of Alcoholic Beverage License Commissioners yesterday suspended the liquor license of Fort Washington Chapter, Disabled American Veterans, for a period of ten days.

The suspension becomes effective today and continues to November 28 inclusive. The board had cited the DAV for a hearing as the result of a conviction in Trial Magistrates Court on a gaming charge several weeks ago.

Golf Course Fund Campaign Is Progressing

Half-Way Mark Hit At Keyser

KEYSER — The campaign to raise $40,000 for a golf course and recreation area near the Upper Potomac Shrine Club has passed the halfway mark, it was revealed at a meeting of the committee in charge and other interested persons Sunday night.

James H. Swadley Jr., co-chairman of the committee, said that 105 persons had signed pledges to purchase $200 notes in the venture, providing the full $40,000 is pledged.

Interest is being shown in the project in Keyser, the Tri-Towns and other nearby communities, Swadley said. Meetings in Moorefield and Petersburg last week and a planned meeting for Romney indicates interest in those communities, he pointed out.

The group decided on three major policies in reference to the project:

(1) The golf course and other facilities may be used by members only. Outsiders, except those from more than 50 miles away, will not be able to play the course by the payment of greens fees.

(2) Besides the nine-hole golf course, other facilities planned are a swimming pool, tennis courts, a children's playground and recreational facilities.

(3) Those who do not sign to purchase stock during the current campaign and who wish to join the club later must pay an additional initiation fee over and above the purchase of a share of stock.

The campaign to raise the $40,000 is just two weeks old, and those working on the project are hopeful of reaching their goal in another two weeks.

Frostburg State Student Enters Queen Competition

FROSTBURG—Miss Marie Goebel is the third candidate to announce for the title of "queen" at the second annual Pancake Day which is being held Saturday in the American Legion Home, sponsored by the Rotary Club. Proceeds go to Beall High School for a new scoreboard and other projects.

Miss Goebel is a student at Frostburg State Teachers College where she is a member of the W.R.A., State-To-Date newspaper staff and the Art Club. While attending Beall High School she was a cheerleader for three years and captain during her senior year. She was also a member of the Tri-Hi-Y and the National Honor Society.

MISS MARIE GOEBEL

She is being sponsored in the contest by the Frostburg Lions Club and is a daughter of past president of the Lions and Mrs. William Goebel, Centennial Street. Her hobbies are golfing and horseback riding.

Soroptimists Return From Convention

KEYSER—Soroptimists of the South Atlantic Region convened at the Greenbrier Hotel, White Sulphur Springs, at its annual convention recently, and local Soroptimists returned home enthused at the reception and the work at the conclave. Dr. Patrick Gainer, English professor at the State University, with the aid of Dr. Patrick's remarks, the convention became known to the delegations as "Mountaineers" although other states sent big delegations.

In his talk, Dr. Gainer, said "Call me a Mountaineer, but don't make the mistake of calling me a "Hill-Billy." As long as I have travelled throughout the state, I've not found one adult individual without shoes, nor have I seen moonshine stills rampant in the hills."

"A hillbilly, "is a product of the cities, not the country areas," he said emphatically.

Dr. Gainer spoke of folk lore and folk songs, "When people no longer have a need to preserve things, they give them up. With the radio and television, we have become a listening nation. If we were to try to sing along with the performer on radio or television, he said we would be "hushed."

West Virginia's Soroptimists put forth a very successful effort to advertise their state. More than 450 women, leaders in their home communities returned to their homes with a better understanding of West Virginia, its hospitality and friendliness.

Delegates were present from Virginia, South Carolina, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Washington, D. C., and West Virginia, as well as a hostess of Soroptimist International.

Present from Keyser were Elsye Clevenger, Louise Leatherman, Linda Ludwig, and Laura Grayson.

W.Va. Council Recommends Prison Work

Separate Unit For Young Urged

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The West Virginia Crime and Delinquency Council has recommended the completion of the new south cell block at Moundsville Penitentiary for use as a separate facility for youthful offenders.

The recommendation to the Legislature's joint interim committee on Government and Finance came from a three-day survey conducted in September by Austin MacCormick, former assistant director of the U. S. Bureau of Prisons. The study was made at the request of the interim committee.

"The state of West Virginia cannot afford the financial luxury of losing the considerable investment it has made during the 20 or more years this project has been in the process of construction," the council said.

The council also recommended immediate completion of the administration building in the new south cell block, postponement of proposed construction of 100 segregated cells and the bringing under the merit system all positions relating to the West Virginia penal and correctional setup

It also called for merging of all parole and correctional activities under a new Department of Corrections.

MacCormick described the quality of personnel situation at the penitentiary as low and advised taking the penitentiary and its employes "out of politics and making the prison service a career service from top to bottom."

"Personnel is the factor of paramount importance in the penal and correctional field, and it is impossible to run a prison safely and efficiently with a constant turnover in the custodial force and other departments, rising to a peak when a change in the party in power in the state administration takes place," he said.

MacCormick said the penitentiary lacks almost all the programs of correctional training and treatment necessary to return prisoners to society and that the function of custody is exercised "on a substandard level" because of the low requirements for appointment as a guard.

Noting that 80 per cent of the penitentiary inmates are idle, Council Chairman Charles M. Love of Charleston said that "nothing is needed more than putting these men to work."

"The prison needs a better chaplain service," Rt. Rev. Wilburn Campbell of Charleston said. "The prisoners don't need preachers but pastoral counsel." He said that only one full-time chaplain has been obtained in West Virginia, and he is at the Industrial School for Boys at Pruntytown.

Interim committee chairman Sen. Ralph J. Bean (D - Hardy) said he was "astounded" to hear of the lack of chaplain service in the state's institutions and described the situation as "disgraceful."

A 14-page report prepared for the council by MacCormick said there was serious overcrowding at the penitentiary and that "the situation will get worse before it gets better." Penitentiary Warden Don Adams had said previously there is no overcrowding and that there is no need for additional cell blocks.

MacCormick said it would be "highly practical" to complete the new south wing. He said there were several inmates available who can do "excellent construction work at tremendous saving to the taxpayers."

MacCormick said the new cell block could be used as an "intermediate reformatory" for approximately 350 prisoners under 21 at the prison. The total inmate population in September was 1,466, MacCormick said.

Piedmont Gets Survey Loan For Sewage

Council Invests Building Fund

PIEDMONT — Mayor Rodney Baker and Council announced last night that an advance loan of $7,000 from the Housing and Home Finance Agency in Philadelphia has been approved for planning a preliminary survey as part of the waste treatment plant being built by the Upper Potomac River Commission.

The plant will be used mainly by the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company. Piedmont, Westernport and Luke have been asked to participate in the operation.

However, it has not been determined whether Piedmont sewage can be carried to the plant by gravity, or if it will be necessary to construct a pumping station. The Robert T. Regester Engineering Company of Baltimore will conduct the survey.

In other council action, Baker stated the town plans to purchase ten $1,000 bonds with $14,427 derived from the sale of the town building to Abe Feldstein of Cumberland. The remaining $4,427 in bonds will be purchased next year. All interest received from these bonds will be added to the building fund account.

Plans are underway for the construction or purchase of another building for town officials and offices.

Council granted permission to the Tri-Towns Lions Club to sell Christmas trees at the Piedmont swimming pool grounds this year. Also on the agenda was the payment of $300 to the Western Pennsylvania Chemical Company for merchandise received.

Golf Course Fund Campaign Is Progressing

Half-Way Mark Hit At Keyser

KEYSER — The campaign to raise $40,000 for a golf course and recreation area near the Upper Potomac Shrine Club has passed the halfway mark, it was revealed at a meeting of the committee in charge and other interested persons Sunday night.

James H. Swadley Jr., co-chairman of the committee, said that 105 persons had signed pledges to purchase $200 notes in the venture, providing the full $40,000 is pledged.

Interest is being shown in the project in Keyser, the Tri-Towns and other nearby communities, Swadley said. Meetings in Moorefield and Petersburg last week and a planned meeting for Romney indicates interest in those communities, he pointed out.

The group decided on three major policies in reference to the project:

(1) The golf course and other facilities may be used by members only. Outsiders, except those from more than 50 miles away, will not be able to play the course by the payment of greens fees.

(2) Besides the nine-hole golf course, other facilities planned are a swimming pool, tennis courts, a children's playground and recreational facilities.

(3) Those who do not sign to purchase stock during the current campaign and who wish to join the club later must pay an additional initiation fee over and above the purchase of a share of stock.

The campaign to raise the $40,000 is just two weeks old, and those working on the project are hopeful of reaching their goal in another two weeks.

Soroptimists Return From Convention

KEYSER—Soroptimists of the South Atlantic Region convened at the Greenbrier Hotel, White Sulphur Springs, at its annual convention recently, and local Soroptimists returned home enthused at the reception and the work at the conclave. Dr. Patrick Gainer, English professor at the State University, with the aid of Dr. Patrick's remarks, the convention became known to the delegations as "Mountaineers" although other states sent big delegations.

In his talk, Dr. Gainer, said "Call me a Mountaineer, but don't make the mistake of calling me a "Hill-Billy." As long as I have travelled throughout the state, I've not found one adult individual without shoes, nor have I seen moonshine stills rampant in the hills."

"A hillbilly, "is a product of the cities, not the country areas," he said emphatically.

Dr. Gainer spoke of folk lore and folk songs, "When people no longer have a need to preserve things, they give them up. With the radio and television, we have become a listening nation. If we were to try to sing along with the performer on radio or television, he said we would be "hushed."

West Virginia's Soroptimists put forth a very successful effort to advertise their state. More than 450 women, leaders in their home communities returned to their homes with a better understanding of West Virginia, its hospitality and friendliness.

Delegates were present from Virginia, South Carolina, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Washington, D. C., and West Virginia, as well as a hostess of Soroptimist International.

Present from Keyser were Elsye Clevenger, Louise Leatherman, Linda Ludwig, and Laura Grayson.

Piedmont Gets Survey Loan For Sewage

Council Invests Building Fund

PIEDMONT — Mayor Rodney Baker and Council announced last night that an advance loan of $7,000 from the Housing and Home Finance Agency in Philadelphia has been approved for planning a preliminary survey as part of the waste treatment plant being built by the Upper Potomac River Commission.

The plant will be used mainly by the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company. Piedmont, Westernport and Luke have been asked to participate in the operation.

However, it has not been determined whether Piedmont sewage can be carried to the plant by gravity, or if it will be necessary to construct a pumping station. The Robert T. Regester Engineering Company of Baltimore will conduct the survey.

In other council action, Baker stated the town plans to purchase ten $1,000 bonds with $14,427 derived from the sale of the town building to Abe Feldstein of Cumberland. The remaining $4,427 in bonds will be purchased next year. All interest received from these bonds will be added to the building fund account.

Plans are underway for the construction or purchase of another building for town officials and offices.

Council granted permission to the Tri-Towns Lions Club to sell Christmas trees at the Piedmont swimming pool grounds this year. Also on the agenda was the payment of $300 to the Western Pennsylvania Chemical Company for merchandise received.

The town is considering running an emergency four-inch water line from near the Piedmont Grocery Company to under the B&O tracks to Water Street, providing permission is given by the railroad company.

Police officers were instructed to enforce a law making it unlawful to litter streets.

Senior Citizens Meet Thursday

The Senior Citizens Club will resume its activities at a meeting Thursday at 2 p.m. in the Elks Club here.

Meetings of the club sponsored by the City Recreation Department were cancelled during the remodeling of the Rainbow Room, according to Mrs. Eva Hogan, assistant recreation director.

A Thanksgiving program is being planned for the meeting.

Charles Shaw willl eulogize Clifton Fuller and L. A. Merritt who died since the last meeting.

Plans for the annual Christmas program will be discussed at the meeting.

The club, composed of citizens who are 65 or over, meets regularly at the Elks Home on second and fourth Thursdays at 2 p.m.

This month's meeting was advanced to this week because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Court Rules Turnpike Commission Not Immune From Legal Action

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Supreme Court ruled Tuesday the West Virginia Turnpike Commission is not entirely an agency of the state and was therefore not immune from suit.

The unanimous opinion written by outgoing Judge Henry L. Ducker reversed a ruling by Kanawha County Circuit Judge Frank L. Taylor that Hope Natural Gas Co., could not sue the commission to collect alleged damages caused by slides and slips on the toll road.

The commission argued it was immune from suit on grounds it was a "constituted agency of the state." Ducker said that the commission's argument "in a limited sense is true," but added:

"An agency may have sovereign powers and not necessarily have the sovereign's immunity.

"In most instances, wherever the function from which the claim arises is purely governmental, there is immunity from suit, but wherever the function is purely proprietary, there is no immunity."

The jurist said there is no immunity in cases involving only the exercises of a proprietary function "by a truly governmental agency or branch of the state government."

He added:

"The nature of the function is controlling only when it is performed by what can be truly said to be the state itself, that is, such a branch or agency of the state as is dependent upon the state government for financial support for its existence."

The law clearly states that the commission is "an entity or quasi public corporation" empowered to sue or be sued and to hold and acquire property, Ducker wrote. Under the law, the commission also can compensate for damages to private property with revenues derived from tolls or other income, "without any liability on the state or any pledge of its faith and credit."

Plans Are Made To Raze Buildings

Mayor J. Edwin Keech said yesterday the Cumberland Housing Authority is to complete plans and specifications this week for the razing of a number of old houses on Wineow Street on the site of a third low-rent housing project.

James B. Raines, executive director of the authority, advised Mayor Keech yesterday that he has been assured the plans will be expedited when sent to Washington and the Public Housing Authority by the end of the week.

The buildings have been an eyesore, health and fire hazard for some time and the object of a number of complaints. The Mayor, authority and other interested parties have been pushing efforts toward removing the old buildings.

U. S. production of paper went up 70 per cent between 1945 and 1955.

48 Fires Burn W.Va. Forests

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Forty-eight forest fires were burning in West Virginia Tuesday according to A. W. Kelly, assistant state forester in charge of fire control.

Kelly said 45 of the fires were in the southwestern one-third of the state including seven in Kanawha County, six in Lincoln and Logan Counties, four in Wayne, Raleigh and McDowell Counties, three in Fayette, Boone and Mingo Counties, and one in Mercer, Summers and Cabell Counties.

Kelly said high winds Tuesday afternoon made all of the fires "bad" but that 23 of the blazes were under control Tuesday night and the rest were expected under control by Wednesday.

Court Rules Turnpike Commission Not Immune From Legal Action

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Supreme Court ruled Tuesday the West Virginia Turnpike Commission is not entirely an agency of the state and was therefore not immune from suit.

The unanimous opinion written by outgoing Judge Henry L. Ducker reversed a ruling by Kanawha County Circuit Judge Frank L. Taylor that Hope Natural Gas Co., could not sue the commission to collect alleged damages caused by slides and slips on the toll road.

The commission argued it was immune from suit on grounds it was a "constituted agency of the state." Ducker said that the commission's argument "in a limited sense is true," but added:

"An agency may have sovereign powers and not necessarily have the sovereign's immunity.

"In most instances, wherever the function from which the claim arises is purely governmental, there is immunity from suit, but wherever the function is purely proprietary, there is no immunity."

The jurist said there is no immunity in cases involving only the exercises of a proprietary function "by a truly governmental agency or branch of the state government."

He added:

"The nature of the function is controlling only when it is performed by what can be truly said to be the state itself, that is, such a branch or agency of the state as is dependent upon the state government for financial support for its existence."

The law clearly states that the commission is "an entity or quasi public corporation" empowered to sue or be sued and to hold and acquire property, Ducker wrote. Under the law, the commission also can compensate for damages to private property with revenues derived from tolls or other income, "without any liability on the state or any pledge of its faith and credit."

Plans Are Made To Raze Buildings

Mayor J. Edwin Keech said yesterday the Cumberland Housing Authority is to complete plans and specifications this week for the razing of a number of old houses on Wineow Street on the site of a third low-rent housing project.

James B. Raines, executive director of the authority, advised Mayor Keech yesterday that he has been assured the plans will be expedited when sent to Washington and the Public Housing Authority by the end of the week.

The buildings have been an eyesore, health and fire hazard for some time and the object of a number of complaints. The Mayor, authority and other interested parties have been pushing efforts toward removing the old buildings.

Teacher Shortage In Nation Eases

"Teacher Shortage Abating, Nationwide Survey Reveals."

This is the headline on an article in Better Schools, a publication of the National Citizens Council for Better Schools. That organization has been in the forefront of efforts to get more and better teachers.

A survey of chief state school officials was made, with 36 replying. Of these, 13 said the teacher shortage was no more severe in their states this year than last, 10 said it was less severe, while only four said the shortage was more severe.

Of the others, three said the situation was split, with shortages among secondary-level teachers and not among elementary—or just the reverse. Three states—Idaho, Iowa and Connecticut—said they had no shortage. And some of the others reported surplus teachers in certain categories.

Many newly qualified teachers entered the profession this year, a total of 90,000 nationally, plus 23,000 former emergency teachers now qualified. The future looks brighter, too. More than 44,000 new elementary teachers are expected to graduate this year, or about the same number as last year. The number of new secondary teachers will be up 10.5 per cent, at 72,000.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Financiers And Economists

When it comes to a discussion of money and gold, the economist thinks in broad terms of the relationship of the total economy of one nation to that of another and how that relationship might affect the flow of goods and services and the well-being of peoples. The financier cannot concern himself with so broad a viewpoint. He is concerned with what the situation immediately means to him as a business operation.

Money in the United States is growing steadily cheaper as a characteristic of the inflation. Money is various things. It is a medium of exchange. It is a receipt for goods and services. It is a method of transferring wealth. It may have intrinsic value if it is supported by value; it may have no intrinsic value if it is merely the product of a printing press.

A government bond is really an equivalent of money. It is a promise by a government to repay a loan with interest, but no government issues such bonds stipulating what kind of money it will use to repay a loan. When a government is strong and stable and its currency is secured by gold, it can usually borrow money at reduced interest rates; when a government's economic condition is not too sound, it must pay a higher interest rate. Such a rate as four per cent would be too high for the government of the United States to pay. If a government, in addition to a high interest rate, has to pay a discount or provide a premium, its credit may be said to be bad.

Government bonds, therefore, are a better barometer than stocks as to the state of the nation. Stocks are hardly a barometer at all. The experiences with inflations and with depressions indicate that very false conclusions can be drawn from the state of the stock market as many people buy stocks because they believe that they are a hedge against inflation; also, if a war is in sight or an enormous budget is prepared for defense purposes, some financiers believe that whereas inflation may become spiral like a tornado, their equities may remain stable if they have invested in war industries.

They fail to recognize two factors that the political economist can foresee; one, that in the event that war should come or the economy should go out of hand, political controls would have to be established which would make their plans go awry; secondly, that if the money of a nation is no good, it does not matter how much of it one has.

This, then, is the most serious problem of the day and the one that most closely affects the politics of the next two years.

President Eisenhower has an unusual opportunity. He cannot constitutionally run for re-election. He is bounden to nobody. He has fought for his party and has lost and is now under no obligations to fight further as a partisan. He can view public questions from the broadest standpoint of public interest without giving any consideration to his particular supporters or partisans. He need not worry about any special groups who may have helped him emerge to the Presidency. He can design his program alone, one man against a tide of private interests. If, to save America, controls have to be put on money and its movement, I believe that the President holds residual powers sufficient to do as he sees fit.

In a word, as a lame duck President, Eisenhower can become truly great if he labors against the inflation and puts it down. If that requires a return to the gold standard, then he can find a way to do just that even if it means temporarily a ceiling on wages, prices, taxes, profits, interest and everything else until a proper adjustment has been made.

President Eisenhower now definitely has the widest freedom of action, and in the year, 1958, he need consult no one in his own party and only Sam Rayburn and Lyndon Johnson among the Democrats.

He can go ahead and save the American economy as he went ahead and crossed the English Channel to invade France. One day the American people, who now find the inflation as salubrious as a Miltown, will discover the inflation and the damage it can do. The terminal consequences of an inflation can be devastating.

Osage, W. Va. Suffered Tragedy Before School Was Dynamited

By Drew Pearson

OSAGE, W. Va.—The latest integrated school to be blown up stands on a hill just above the little town of Osage. If you look down the valley from that hill you see a grim cluster of stores and houses—fewer than 1,000 people and most of them out of work. The town is grim and gray, but not grimy. The streets are stained with coal dust, but are not unkempt. The stores are up to date. And there is an air of quiet pride in the homes that nestle against the brown West Virginia hillsides.

Out of those hills have been taken black gold that has made fortunes for some people, though not for the men who tunnel into the hills to bring it out.

The tipple of Pittsburgh Consolidated, the biggest coal company in the world, controlled by former Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey and the Mellons, stands in the valley below the Osage School. From its tipple runs a conveyor belt carrying an endless stream of coal from the mine, across the hill to the Monongahela River below. Not a human hand touches the coal as it runs from mine mouth to river barge. And because it has cut labor costs, Pittsburgh Consolidated is running today. Many other mines are not.

Also looking down from Osage's integrated, now dynamited, school, you see the wealthiest railroad per mile in the world, the Monongahela, better known as Scott's Run. Over its five miles of track has traveled more coal than on any other railroad in the world. The endless conveyor belt of Pittsburgh Consolidated, plus the recession, has cut its traffic somewhat, but its rails are by no means rusty.

Mine Tragedy Remembered

As you go to the school you also pass the mine of R. M. Davis, who once walked the streets of Morgantown without a dollar in his pocket, now is worth a million. And you also the pass the mine of Frank Christopher, where Osage's worst mine tragedy took place in 1942.

The wives and mothers of Osage still remember all too vividly the long vigil, the awful silence, the 57 bodies wrapped in gunny sacks carried out of the mine.

They remember and they compare that tragedy. It boasts some of the richest coal seams in the world, yet poverty always lurks in the background. Inside its hills are galleries of coal so rich that a man can stand upright, and mine veins nine feet high. Inside its hills the Pittsburgh vein and the Sewickley vein run parrallel, above and below each other, so that men can mine one vein while other men mine another vein in the same hill, directly underneath.

But poverty still plagues Osage. It was from Scott's Run that Mrs. Roosevelt, in the dark depression days, transplanted some of the mine families to her famous Arthurdale resettlement. And it was because of poverty that Osage recently incorporated into a community of its own—thus giving it some revenue from its own liquor store. If Osage money was to pour into the liquor store on Saturday nights, Mayor Stanley Solomon and the City Council figured they might as well get some of it back.

Osage was beginning to talk about a new sewage system and other up-to-date marks of a newly incorporated community when someone entered the junior high school early Monday morning, methodically laid a case of dynamite in the front hall, carefully ran a wire through the gymnasium, broke a hole in the glass over the gym door for the wire to pass through, then from a safe distance detonated the dynamite.

Dynamite Plays Tricks

I stood in the hall where the explosion took place. It was much like the exploison in Clinton, Tenn. A huge, gaping hole had been blown in the concrete floor. A bulge had been punched in the ceiling above. Steel lockers which once lined the walls to hold boys' and girls' sweaters and lunchboxes were twisted and mangled, good only for the junk heap.

Slabs of concrete had been torn loose. Steel bars which once reinforced the concrete now jutted out from the walls. Broken glass, plaster, dust was everywhere. Men were patiently shoveling the debris into wheelbarrows and trundling it out of the building. It would take a long time to clear away the wreckage and estimate the damage.

Dynatime will play peculiar tricks. It will play havoc with everything in a room, but leave one object untouched. In the Osage School it played particular havoc with the heating ducts. The rush of air from the explosion had broken and twisted them into weird shapes. The air coming through the heating ducts had blown one leg each off of two sewing machines in the home economics room, but left the other legs intact.

In the science room I picked up a book. It was "Our Environment: How We Use And Control It" by Wood and Carpenter. The mine owners of Osage have been using the wealth of that environment for years, and the people of Osage recently had been trying to control their environment. They had made some progress. But they had not been able to control hate.

Beside the book was one gym sneaker marked in large inked letters "Fortney." A student wanted to be sure his sneakers were not stolen. But Fortney had recokened without dynamite. The explosion had blown his other shoe to oblivion.

Along with it, for the time being, had gone the education of the children of this grim, gray little town nestled in the brown hills of West Virginia.

(Editor's Note—Drew Pearson will report in another early column on school dynamiting).

Hussein Forever! Reporter Gets A Lesson

By Joseph Alsop

AMMAN, Jordan

Events in this extraordinary country have a way of resembling episodes in one of the old serial movies — say "The Perils of Pauline" — with the heroine, or in this case the hero, always emerging from direst danger in a glow of triumph at the close of each episode.

The curious fact remains, however, that even such an unreal piece of melodrama as young King Hussein's escape from the attacking Syrian MIG fighters can also be full of genuine political significance. Consider, for example, just one incident in this particular installment of the Jordanian serial.

After the young King's plane had taken off, the tough, astute Prime Minister, Samir Rifai, and several other leaders of the government returned to the Jordanian government office building for breakfast and a business talk. They had no particular fear of a Syrian attack on the King's plane. But just to be sure that all went well, one of those present turned on the radio communicator with the Amman airfield tower, which is installed in the government offices because of the King's passionate interest in aviation.

After the first growl of static, the communicator quickly began to pour out the argument between King Hussien's pilot and the Damascus control tower. Then, quite suddenly, there was silence (because the pilot, Wing Commander Dalgleish, observed radio silence from the moment of the first pass by the Syrian MIGs). The breakfasters were filled with consternation, thinking the King had been shot down. They at once telephoned the news to the Jordanian Chief of Staff, Hobis Majjali, at the Arab Legion camp at Zerqa.

There the telephone operator must have listened in, or in some other way the news that the Syrians had shot down King Hussien spread like wildfire through the camp. By a kind of instantaneous combustion, over the protests of their officers, a huge majority of the Arab Legion rank and file immediately marched off on the road to the north, with the actual intention of invading Syria without any further delays or formalities.

The troops would not be quieted or reassured, until great numbers of them had been taken in a long procession of Army trucks to cheer the King at the palace after his almost miraculous safe return. Altogether, it would be hard to imagine a more curious or more convincing demonstration of an army's loyalty and affection. And the timing and everything else proved very clearly that the demonstration was in the rare, truly spontaneous category.

Anyone with the slightest experience of Arab politics must see the far-reaching significance of this demonstration. In every Arab state, the Army is the dominant political factor. In Iraq, for instance, the Army was disloyal, and a seemingly all-powerful government was bloodily subverted. But in Jordan, as one by-product of the strange episode of the King's escape from the Syrian MIGs, the most convincing proof has been given of the loyalty of the Army rank and file.

This is one reason why it is now necessary to correct a previous report in this space, concerning the alarm felt in Washington about King Hussien's plan to take a vacation. The official Washingtonian alarm was real enough, but it can now be categorically stated that the alarm was quite groundless. Young King Hussein emphatically was not taking a vacation with the expectation that he would not return to rule in Jordan. Furthermore, the most cynical foreign observers and the Jordanians most hostile to King Hussein's government agree that nothing would have happened during the King's absence to prevent his return. In fact, this reporter has had a sharp lesson, concerning the truth of the old rule of the reporter's trade that you must always go and have a look yourself.

Even a brief look at Jordan has been enough to provide all sorts of bits of positive evidence, all tending to prove that King Hussein's government is now as stable as any government can be in this inherently unstable country. For example, there were the huge street crowds shouting their huzzas for the King and bellowing "Down with Gamal Abdel Nasser" for good measure.

You can argue that this part of the demonstration after the King's return was not altogether spontaneous or sincere. No one can disprove this argument, which is made by some observers here. But fourteen months ago, all the police and all the money in the world would have been unable to get the street crowds of Amman to cheer Hussein and curse Nasser. That fact is unarguable, and it means that a most important change has occurred here.

Besides the Arab Legion's loyalty to Hussein, there seem to be two other major factors behind this change. One of these factors is quite simply the way the incomparably brave young King has finally "got through" to his people. Even the enemies of his government admire his courage and determination. No one could help but do so. The Arabs are also great believers in luck. There is even a single work in Arabic, "mahtouz," which means a lucky man, with whom it is wise to be on good terms and unwise to oppose. Rather naturally, in view of recent history, Hussein is thought to be such a man.

Just as they believe in luck, jumpers. This too has a bearing here, because the other factor in the improvement of Hussein's position is the growing conviction that the once resistless bandwagon of Egypt's Nasser has lost much of its momentum. But this check of the Nasser bandwagon is a separate and a major subject.

You're Telling Me!

Those two Syrian jet fighter pilots must feel mighty proud of themselves. They fearlessly attacked the defenseless plane of King Hussein of Jordan though they outnumbered him only two to one.

Next time Hussein attempts to fly to Europe he'll probably detour Syria. Sometimes a straight line isn't the shortest distance between two points!

It's been estimated that the passenger fare for a trip to the moon would be a million dollars or so. That's one way only. So far, we understand, no one has figured the cost of a round trip—if any.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

"I'll take you home," I said, The old man looked at me half-reproachfully. He had the mane and the lean face of a tired lion. The fingers, long and thin and with the texture of chicken skin, curled around the highball glass. He looked at me to make sure that there was no indictment in the offer. "All right," he said. "All right."

He took his time with the drink. He studied the single cube of ice in the rye and he pushed it with his finger. He was an old lion, with fangs drawn, sitting in the downstairs bar of the Hackensack Elks Club. He looked around the big room as though someone might try to steal it from his memory. His poached blue eyes saw the men, chatting and laughing in groups around the big tables, like frogs around lily pads at sundown.

Some nodded. Some did not. Patrick Henry Maley was a great lawyer, a great fighter. The ones who did not nod knew him as one who will speak his mind and there are times when men do not encourage those who speak out. Pat Maley's sun had set.

He sipped the drink again. "Okay, okay," he said, and got off the chair and walked, a little stiffly toward the door. I had the car out in back and it was cold. A big plume of white exhaust curled up in back and Pat said to me: "I'm your friend. You know that."

"Sure," I said, and swung the car out into Union Street and on up toward Oradell. He rubbed the blood back into the old paws and he said: "Stay away from booze. It never did anybody a bit of good."

"Sure," I said. He lit a cigaret and let it hang from his mouth so that the blue smoke curled into a squinted eye. "Don't sure me," he said. "I'm talking sense and you're sureing me."

"I don't want to fight with you," I said. He yanked the cigaret from his mouth, flicked the ashes on the floor mat, and cackled. "Who's fighting? I'm an old man. I'm done, Jim. I'm through. In two months I'll be 77. It's too late for me to be wise. But not you. You're around 40 or so. Your best writing years are just around the corner. You'll make it in the next 10 or you'll never make it."

The car climbed the little hill west out of Oradell and the yellow headlights picked up blue diamonds in the crusts of old snow. He took his fedora off and slammed it against his knee. "I'm not saying you're a boozer. You're not. But you had a couple tonight and if Elinor invites me to your house for dinner you'll have a few.

"What I'm saying is that a writer who drinks is half a writer; a lawyer who drinks is half a lawyer; a doctor who drinks is half a doctor. Whatever your talent is, booze will cut it in half."

He had a little edge on. Pat Maley was belligerent at any time; with a little load he was tough. I grinned at the windshield. "If I promise never to have one again will you shut up?" He hit my shoulder with his fist. "If you promise me," he said. "I'll shut up forever." I held out my hand. "You have a promise," I said.

I kept mine. He didn't keep his and I didn't want him to keep it. We drove the rest of the way to Bergen Pines Hospital, where he lived in those days, talking about libel. Pat Maley knew the law. He talked as though he was being paid by the word.

"If you write that a lawyer is a quack lawyer," he said softly, in the tone of a professor addressing a D student, "is that libel? It is not. The court will find that there is no such term as a quack lawyer. If you call a lawyer a shyster, that's libel. The word quack can be applied only to a doctor of questionable judgment and learning." He took a long draw on his cigaret. "Am I getting across to you?"

"Yes," I said. "I understand."

We reached the hospital and he got out, still talking, but now it was in the soft tone. "If anything you write hurts a man in his calling," he said, "he can sue. And collect. If, for example, you wrote that a minister was seen late at night with a painted Jezebel on his arm, he could sue, even if what you wrote was true.

"On the other hand," said Pat Maley, slamming the car door, "if you wrote that you saw a lawyer with a painted Jezebel on his arm, would that be libel? Indeed not, because we can safely assume that he was working on a case."

Neuritis Wrongly Blamed For Many Aches, Pains

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Many aches and pains are mistakenly attributed to neuritis. This diagnosis offers an easy explanation of bizarre symptoms. Neuritis is a legitimate and specific disease and is not synonymous with pain. This is particularly true of nervous afflictions involving the extremities, trunk, and face.

Some persons are said to have neuritis even though pain is not located over a nerve. This is not possible. The same applies to other nerve symptoms. In addition to sensations of pain, these fibers transmit sensations of touch, temperature, and deep sensibility. They are concerned also with making the skin warm, cold, pale, dry, or oily, and with such functions as perspiration.

Sensory involvement is most predominant; hence pain, numbness, and tingling along the course of the involved nerve are most likely to occur in neuritis. For example, in alcoholic neuritis, leg pain may be so severe and the bottom of the foot so sensitive, the individual cringes when the sole is stroked gently with a finger.

Pain along the back of the leg is typical of sciatic nerve involvement. This may be caused by inflammation, lead poisoning, or pressure on the fibers by an arthritic process or a spinal disk. As sciatica progresses, the outer aspect of the leg and foot may become numb and the muscles weakened. Paralysis may follow in time. A careful examination uncovers reflex changes and other abnormalities.

Alterations in perception are determined with pins, tuning forks (vibration), a wisp of cotton, or test tubes containing warm or cold water. Machines are available to study reactions and other functions of the nerve that cannot be uncovered in any other way.

The importance of diagnosis cannot be stressed enough, because only in this way can proper treatment be determined. A nerve may be damaged irreparably unless the disease process is recognized and stopped in time.

VARICOSE VEINS

Mrs. T. writes: Should ugly looking veins be removed if they cause no trouble?

REPLY

This depends upon how vain you are. When a vein is varicosed, it is not functioning properly and is potentially hazardous even if it is not bothersome at this time. Varicosities may interfere with healing of a wound in the lower leg, for example, or lead to complications should abdominal surgery be needed. If a vein is big enough to look ugly, it is big enough to be removed.

CRYING BOY

J. M. writes: How should an 8 year old boy who cries a lot be handled?

REPLY

This boy is either unhappy or unhealthy or both. Start your search by taking him to the family physician for an examination. If he is healthy physically, the emotional aspect deserves attention and it is here that the parents, rather than the child, may be at fault.

CHILDHOOD DISEASES

Mrs. D. writes: Is it true that diseases such as chicken pox and mumps are much worse when they strike a grownup who didn't have them in childhood?

REPLY

Yes, as complications are more likely to occur and the adult is more indisposed.

KIDNEY ARTERIES

F. W. writes: Does high blood pressure cause kidney disease?

REPLY

It may, if high blood pressure is complicated by arteriosclerosis, including hardening of the arteries of the kidneys.

TOMORROW: Various manifestations of amebic dysentery.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Teacher Shortage In Nation Eases

"Teacher Shortage Abating, Nationwide Survey Reveals."

This is the headline on an article in Better Schools, a publication of the National Citizens Council for Better Schools. That organization has been in the forefront of efforts to get more and better teachers.

A survey of chief state school officials was made, with 36 replying. Of these, 13 said the teacher shortage was no more severe in their states this year than last, 10 said it was less severe, while only four said the shortage was more severe.

Of the others, three said the situation was split, with shortages among secondary-level teachers and not among elementary—or just the reverse. Three states—Idaho, Iowa and Connecticut—said they had no shortage. And some of the others reported surplus teachers in certain categories.

Many newly qualified teachers entered the profession this year, a total of 90,000 nationally, plus 23,000 former emergency teachers now qualified. The future looks brighter, too. More than 44,000 new elementary teachers are expected to graduate this year, or about the same number as last year. The number of new secondary teachers will be up 10.5 per cent, at 72,000.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Financiers And Economists

When it comes to a discussion of money and gold, the economist thinks in broad terms of the relationship of the total economy of one nation to that of another and how that relationship might affect the flow of goods and services and the well-being of peoples. The financier cannot concern himself with so broad a viewpoint. He is concerned with what the situation immediately means to him as a business operation.

Money in the United States is growing steadily cheaper as a characteristic of the inflation. Money is various things. It is a medium of exchange. It is a receipt for goods and services. It is a method of transferring wealth. It may have intrinsic value if it is supported by value; it may have no intrinsic value if it is merely the product of a printing press.

A government bond is really an equivalent of money. It is a promise by a government to repay a loan with interest, but no government issues such bonds stipulating what kind of money it will use to repay a loan. When a government is strong and stable and its currency is secured by gold, it can usually borrow money at reduced interest rates; when a government's economic condition is not too sound, it must pay a higher interest rate. Such a rate as four per cent would be too high for the government of the United States to pay. If a government, in addition to a high interest rate, has to pay a discount or provide a premium, its credit may be said to be bad.

Government bonds, therefore, are a better barometer than stocks as to the state of the nation. Stocks are hardly a barometer at all. The experiences with inflations and with depressions indicate that very false conclusions can be drawn from the state of the stock market as many people buy stocks because they believe that they are a hedge against inflation; also, if a war is in sight or an enormous budget is prepared for defense purposes, some financiers believe that whereas inflation may become spiral like a tornado, their equities may remain stable if they have invested in war industries.

They fail to recognize two factors that the political economist can foresee; one, that in the event that war should come or the economy should go out of hand, political controls would have to be established which would make their plans go awry; secondly, that if the money of a nation is no good, it does not matter how much of it one has.

This, then, is the most serious problem of the day and the one that most closely affects the politics of the next two years.

President Eisenhower has an unusual opportunity. He cannot constitutionally run for re-election. He is bounden to nobody. He has fought for his party and has lost and is now under no obligations to fight further as a partisan. He can view public questions from the broadest standpoint of public interest without giving any consideration to his particular supporters or partisans. He need not worry about any special groups who may have helped him emerge to the Presidency. He can design his program alone, one man against a tide of private interests. If, to save America, controls have to be put on money and its movement, I believe that the President holds residual powers sufficient to do as he sees fit.

In a word, as a lame duck President, Eisenhower can become truly great if he labors against the inflation and puts it down. If that requires a return to the gold standard, then he can find a way to do just that even if it means temporarily a ceiling on wages, prices, taxes, profits, interest and everything else until a proper adjustment has been made.

President Eisenhower now definitely has the widest freedom of action, and in the year, 1958, he need consult no one in his own party and only Sam Rayburn and Lyndon Johnson among the Democrats.

He can go ahead and save the American economy as he went ahead and crossed the English Channel to invade France. One day the American people, who now find the inflation as salubrious as a Miltown, will discover the inflation and the damage it can do. The terminal consequences of an inflation can be devastating.

Osage, W. Va. Suffered Tragedy Before School Was Dynamited

By Drew Pearson

OSAGE, W. Va.—The latest integrated school to be blown up stands on a hill just above the little town of Osage. If you look down the valley from that hill you see a grim cluster of stores and houses—fewer than 1,000 people and most of them out of work. The town is grim and gray, but not grimy. The streets are stained with coal dust, but are not unkempt. The stores are up to date. And there is an air of quiet pride in the homes that nestle against the brown West Virginia hillsides.

Out of those hills have been taken black gold that has made fortunes for some people, though not for the men who tunnel into the hills to bring it out.

The tipple of Pittsburgh Consolidated, the biggest coal company in the world, controlled by former Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey and the Mellons, stands in the valley below the Osage School. From its tipple runs a conveyor belt carrying an endless stream of coal from the mine, across the hill to the Monongahela River below. Not a human hand touches the coal as it runs from mine mouth to river barge. And because it has cut labor costs, Pittsburgh Consolidated is running today. Many other mines are not.

Also looking down from Osage's integrated, now dynamited, school, you see the wealthiest railroad per mile in the world, the Monongahela, better known as Scott's Run. Over its five miles of track has traveled more coal than on any other railroad in the world. The endless conveyor belt of Pittsburgh Consolidated, plus the recession, has cut its traffic somewhat, but its rails are by no means rusty.

Mine Tragedy Remembered

As you go to the school you also pass the mine of R. M. Davis, who once walked the streets of Morgantown without a dollar in his pocket, now is worth a million. And you also the pass the mine of Frank Christopher, where Osage's worst mine tragedy took place in 1942.

The wives and mothers of Osage still remember all too vividly the long vigil, the awful silence, the 57 bodies wrapped in gunny sacks carried out of the mine.

They remember and they compare that tragedy. It boasts some of the richest coal seams in the world, yet poverty always lurks in the background.° Inside its hills are galleries of coal so rich that a man can stand upright, and mine veins nine feet high. Inside its hills the Pittsburgh vein and the Sewickley vein run parrallel, above and below each other, so that men can mine one vein while other men mine another vein in the same hill, directly underneath.

But poverty still plagues Osage. It was from Scott's Run that Mrs. Roosevelt, in the dark depression days, transplanted some of the mine families to her famous Arthurdale resettlement. And it was because of poverty that Osage recently incorporated into a community of its own—thus giving it some revenue from its own liquor store. If Osage money was to pour into the liquor store on Saturday nights, Mayor Stanley Solomon and the City Council figured they might as well get some of it back.

Osage was beginning to talk about a new sewage system and other up-to-date marks of a newly incorporated community when someone entered the junior high school early Monday morning, methodically laid a case of dynamite in the front hall, carefully ran a wire through the gymnasium, broke a hole in the glass over the gym door for the wire to pass through, then from a safe distance detonated the dynamite.

Dynamite Plays Tricks

I stood in the hall where the explosion took place. It was much like the exploison in Clinton, Tenn. A huge, gaping hole had been blown in the concrete floor. A bulge had been punched in the ceiling above. Steel lockers which once lined the walls to hold boys' and girls' sweaters and lunchboxes were twisted and mangled, good only for the junk heap.

Slabs of concrete had been torn loose. Steel bars which once reinforced the concrete now jutted out from the walls. Broken glass, plaster, dust was everywhere. Men were patiently shoveling the debris into wheelbarrows and trundling it out of the building. It would take a long time to clear away the wreckage and estimate the damage.

Dynatime will play peculiar tricks. It will play havoc with everything in a room, but leave one object untouched. In the Osage School it played particular havoc with the heating ducts. The rush of air from the explosion had broken and twisted them into weird shapes. The air coming through the heating ducts had blown one leg each off of two sewing machines in the home economics room, but left the other legs intact.

In the science room I picked up a book. It was "Our Environment: How We Use And Control It" by Wood and Carpenter. The mine owners of Osage have been using the wealth of that environment for years, and the people of Osage recently had been trying to control their environment. They had made some progress. But they had not been able to control hate.

Beside the book was one gym sneaker marked in large inked letters "Fortney." A student wanted to be sure his sneakers were not stolen. But Fortney had recokened without dynamite. The explosion had blown his other shoe to oblivion.

Along with it, for the time being, had gone the education of the children of this grim, gray little town nestled in the brown hills of West Virginia.

(Editor's Note—Drew Pearson will report in another early column on school dynamiting).

Hussein Forever! Reporter Gets A Lesson

By Joseph Alsop

AMMAN, Jordan

Events in this extraordinary country have a way of resembling episodes in one of the old serial movies — say "The Perils of Pauline" — with the heroine, or in this case the hero, always emerging from direst danger in a glow of triumph at the close of each episode.

The curious fact remains, however, that even such an unreal piece of melodrama as young King Hussein's escape from the attacking Syrian MIG fighters can also be full of genuine political significance. Consider, for example, just one incident in this particular installment of the Jordanian serial.

After the young King's plane had taken off, the tough, astute Prime Minister, Samir Rifai, and several other leaders of the government returned to the Jordanian government office building for breakfast and a business talk. They had no particular fear of a Syrian attack on the King's plane. But just to be sure that all went well, one of those present turned on the radio communicator with the Amman airfield tower, which is installed in the government offices because of the King's passionate interest in aviation.

After the first growl of static, the communicator quickly began to pour out the argument between King Hussien's pilot and the Damascus control tower. Then, quite suddenly, there was silence (because the pilot, Wing Commander Dalgleish, observed radio silence from the moment of the first pass by the Syrian MIGs). The breakfasters were filled with consternation, thinking the King had been shot down. They at once telephoned the news to the Jordanian Chief of Staff, Hobis Majjali, at the Arab Legion camp at Zerqa.

There the telephone operator must have listened in, or in some other way the news that the Syrians had shot down King Hussien spread like wildfire through the camp. By a kind of instantaneous combustion, over the protests of their officers, a huge majority of the Arab Legion rank and file immediately marched off on the road to the north, with the actual intention of invading Syria without any further delays or formalities.

The troops would not be quieted or reassured, until great numbers of them had been taken in a long procession of Army trucks to cheer the King at the palace after his almost miraculous safe return. Altogether, it would be hard to imagine a more curious or more convincing demonstration of an army's loyalty and affection. And the timing and everything else proved very clearly that the demonstration was in the rare, truly spontaneous category.

Anyone with the slightest experience of Arab politics must see the far-reaching significance of this demonstration. In every Arab state, the Army is the dominant political factor. In Iraq, for instance, the Army was disloyal, and a seemingly all-powerful government was bloodily subverted. But in Jordan, as one by-product of the strange episode of the King's escape from the Syrian MIGs, the most convincing proof has been given of the loyalty of the Army rank and file.

This is one reason why it is now necessary to correct a previous report in this space, concerning the alarm felt in Washington about King Hussien's plan to take a vacation. The official Washingtonian alarm was real enough, but it can now be categorically stated that the alarm was quite groundless. Young King Hussein emphatically was not taking a vacation with the expectation that he would not return to rule in Jordan. Furthermore, the most cynical foreign observers and the Jordanians most hostile to King Hussein's government agree that nothing would have happened during the King's absence to prevent his return. In fact, this reporter has had a sharp lesson, concerning the truth of the old rule of the reporter's trade that you must always go and have a look yourself.

Even a brief look at Jordan has been enough to provide all sorts of bits of positive evidence, all tending to prove that King Hussein's government is now as stable as any government can be in this inherently unstable country. For example, there were the huge street crowds shouting their huzzas for the King and bellowing "Down with Gamal Abdel Nasser" for good measure.

You can argue that this part of the demonstration after the King's return was not altogether spontaneous or sincere. No one can disprove this argument, which is made by some observers here. But fourteen months ago, all the police and all the money in the world would have been unable to get the street crowds of Amman to cheer Hussein and curse Nasser. That fact is unarguable, and it means that a most important change has occurred here.

Besides the Arab Legion's loyalty to Hussein, there seem to be two other major factors behind this change. One of these factors is quite simply the way the incomparably brave young King has finally "got through" to his people. Even the enemies of his government admire his courage and determination. No one could help but do so. The Arabs are also great believers in luck. There is even a single work in Arabic, "mahtouz," which means a lucky man, with whom it is wise to be on good terms and unwise to oppose. Rather naturally, in view of recent history, Hussein is thought to be such a man.

Just as they believe in luck, jumpers. This too has a bearing here, because the other factor in the improvement of Hussein's position is the growing conviction that the once resistless bandwagon of Egypt's Nasser has lost much of its momentum. But this check of the Nasser bandwagon is a separate and a major subject.

Those two Syrian jet fighter pilots must feel mighty proud of themselves. They fearlessly attacked the defenseless plane of King Hussein of Jordan though they outnumbered him only two to one.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

"I'll take you home," I said. The old man looked at me half-reproachfully. He had the mane and the lean face of a tired lion. The fingers, long and thin and with the texture of chicken skin, curled around the highball glass. He looked at me to make sure that there was no indictment in the offer. "All right," he said. "All right."

He took his time with the drink. He studied the single cube of ice in the rye and he pushed it with his finger. He was an old lion, with fangs drawn, sitting in the downstairs bar of the Hackensack Elks Club. He looked around the big room as though someone might try to steal it from his memory. His poached blue eyes saw the men, chatting and laughing in groups around the big tables, like frogs around lily pads at sundown.

Some nodded. Some did not. Patrick Henry Maley was a great lawyer, a great fighter. The ones who did not nod knew him as one who will speak his mind and there are times when men do not encourage those who speak out. Pat Maley's sun had set.

He sipped the drink again. "Okay, okay," he said, and got off the chair and walked, a little stiffly toward the door. I had the car out in back and it was cold. A big plume of white exhaust curled up in back and Pat said to me: "I'm your friend. You know that."

"Sure," I said, and swung the car out into Union Street and on up toward Oradell. He rubbed the blood back into the old paws and he said: "Stay away from booze. It never did anybody a bit of good."

"Sure," I said. He lit a cigaret and let it hang from his mouth so that the blue smoke curled into a squinted eye. "Don't sure me," he said. "I'm talking sense and you're sureing me."

"I don't want to fight with you," I said. He yanked the cigaret from his mouth, flicked the ashes on the floor mat, and cackled. "Who's fighting? I'm an old man. I'm done, Jim. I'm through. In two months I'll be 77. It's too late for me to be wise. But not you. You're around 40 or so. Your best writing years are just around the corner. You'll make it in the next 10 or you'll never make it."

The car climbed the little hill west out of Oradell and the yellow headlights picked up blue diamonds in the crusts of old snow. He took his fedora off and slammed it against his knee. "I'm not saying you're a boozer. You're not. But you had a couple tonight and if Elinor invites me to your house for dinner you'll have a few.

"What I'm saying is that a writer who drinks is half a writer; a lawyer who drinks is half a lawyer; a doctor who drinks is half a doctor. Whatever your talent is, booze will cut it in half."

He had a little edge on. Pat Maley was belligerent at any time; with a little load he was tough. I grinned at the windshield. "If I promise never to have one again will you shut up?" He hit my shoulder with his fist. "If you promise me," he said. "I'll shut up forever." I held out my hand. "You have a promise," I said.

I kept mine. He didn't keep his and I didn't want him to keep it. We drove the rest of the way to Bergen Pines Hospital, where he lived in those days, talking about libel. Pat Maley knew the law. He talked as though he was being paid by the word.

"If you write that a lawyer is a quack lawyer," he said softly, in the tone of a professor addressing a D student, "is that libel? It is not. The court will find that there is no such term as a quack lawyer. If you call a lawyer a shyster, that's libel. The word quack can be applied only to a doctor of questionable judgment and learning." He took a long draw on his cigaret. "Am I getting across to you?"

"Yes," I said. "I understand."

We reached the hospital and he got out, still talking, but now it was in the soft tone. "If anything you write hurts a man in his calling," he said, "he can sue. And collect. If, for example, you wrote that a minister was seen late at night with a painted Jezebel on his arm, he could sue, even if what you wrote was true.

"On the other hand," said Pat Maley, slamming the car door, "if you wrote that you saw a lawyer with a painted Jezebel on his arm, would that be libel? Indeed not, because we can safely assume that he was working on a case."

Pettit's Average Is All-Time High

NEW YORK (UPI)—Lanky Bob Pettit of the St. Louis Hawks has chalked up a new National Basketball Association record by averaging 30.0 points per game for the first nine games this season, but George Yardley of Detroit remains the scoring leader because he's played more games.

That was the report Tuesday from the NBA which showed Yardley on top of the heap with 290 points in 12 games and rookie Elgin Baylor of Minneapolis hot on his heels with 285, also in 12 games.

Pettit, the former league scoring king from Louisiana State, stands only third in overall point totals with 270. But his average has eclipsed the nine-game scoring record of 29.3 points per game set by George Mikan of Minneapolis in 1950.

Newton Anderson, principal of Buckhannon (W. Va.) High School, will serve as one of the officials for the Thanksgiving Day city championship football game between Allegany High School and Fort Hill High School for the 13th straight year, William P. Hahn, Fort Hill mentor, announced last night.

William Kafer, of Glenville College, will serve as an official for the third straight year. The fourth arbiter will be Richard Young, of Morris Harvey College, Charleston.

Charles R. McFerran Trap Pioneer Dies

Columnist Sharer Record In Dispute

By C. V. BURNS

ONE of the pioneers of trapshooting in this area passed on when Charles R. "Huck" McFerran, 77, died at his home here Saturday.

"Huck" and the late James C. Powell, local contractor, promoted the sport which thrived in the 1920s when the Cumberland Gun Club traps were located on the Country Club property.

Registered shoots were big events in those days and large groups of visiting gunners came to compete for the many valuable and useful gifts donated by local merchants.

Mr. McFerran was instrumental in persuading Frank Troeh, one of the nation's greatest all-time trapshooters, to come from the west coast for a shoot here.

The famed Crothers of Chestnut Hill, Pa.—Steve and his sister Alice—shot over the local traps several times as did pro J. Mowell Hawkins, cousin of Dr. Arthur H. Hawkins, local surgeon, who also participated.

Wilbur "Bill" Powell, son of "Big Jim," was trapshooting's "Boy Wonder" and one of the great local shots was Frank "Daddy" Billmeyer, who hit the national spotlight by winning the much publicized Westy Hogan Shoot with a run of 100 straight targets.

Other local regulars included Dr. George O. Sharrett, Dr. Edward Harris, Bill Rockwood, Guy Bradour, Douglas P. LeFevre, Fred Loree and Dr. E. Don Taylor.

Guy Bradour recalls the days when Jim Powell and "Huck" McFerran did their first trapshooting at Campobello. That was before the Cumberland Gun Club was organized.

"Huck" McFerran and many of the others we have mentioned have gone to their last resting place. In our book, "Huck" was one grand guy.

FRED SHARER, whose byline appeared on football and basketball stories in The Cumberland News several years ago when he was attending Fort Hill High School, is now co-sports editor of The Red and Black, student publication of Washington & Jefferson College at Washington, Pa.

Fred writes a column headed "Spot Light On Sports" and in the October 24 issue he devotes two full columns to the question: "What Is The Matter With W. & J. Football?"

W. & J. College was founded 178 years ago and once upon a time was a power in football. In fact, the Presidents played in the fourth Rose Bowl game in 1922 and battled California to a scoreless tie. Charley West, the Negro, and Wilbur "Fats" Henry are among the school's all-time athletic heroes.

The Presidents have been on the football toboggan and Dr. Sharer tries to prescribe something that might bring his sick patient back to health. Atta boy, "Doc."

JOHN C. MEYERS, Valley High School coach, says he would like the writer to settle an argument that crops up every time mention is made of the fact that Chester Marsh, of Bruce High School, set an all-time scoring record in the W.M.I. Soccer League in 1932 when he scored ten goals in one game.

Coach Meyers reports that several Lonaconing citizens claim William Kelley, of Central High School, tied or bettered such a record in a league game against Midland High about 1927.

After checking the microfilm we found that Midland was not in the league in 1927 and there was no Kelley on the Central team.

However, the "movies" of 1926 indicate Midland was in the league, was clobbered every time it played and there was a Kelley in the Central lineup.

On Saturday, Oct. 16, 1926 we found that Central swamped Midland by the score of 35-0 and field goals were valued at two points at that time. The lineups of both teams appear in the paper but there is no summary of points scored by each individual.

And here is what it says about Kelley:

"Bill Kelley made several points with field goals and penalty shots."

Kelley could have equalled or set a record but we don't have any proof of it. And we can't go by guesswork. The writeup only states that Central won the game, 35-0.

The Orange and Black, Central High School's student publication, was published 32 years ago, we are quite sure, and might have carried an account of the game and more definite proof that one William Kelley was a ball of fire that afternoon. But until we obtain something more authentic we can't change the recognized record.

Perhaps someone could shed light on the matter by unearthing a copy of the school paper to prove that it's true what they say about Kelley.

Giardello, Webb Clash Tonight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—They've billed Wednesday night's fight between Joey Giardello and Spider Webb as boxer vs. puncher but there's debate on which is which.

Some say Webb is the boxer and Giardello the puncher. Others put it the other way around.

In any event, the 28-year-old Giardello from Rosedale, N.Y., rates as favorite to win this 10-round Cow Palace battle between the two high - ranking middleweights with a nationwide television audience (ABC) looking in. A TV blackout here has a 300-mile radius.

From the record book, Giardello has stopped 26 foes in 97 fights while Webb bats at a higher percentage with 15 unable to go the distance against him in 33 outings.

Should this bout go the limit, the decision comes from the referee and two judges on the basis of the 10-point must system.

Forgeries of pictures can be detected by photography, which reveals differences of brush work.

Arcaro Will Ride Derrick In Futurity

Shoemaker, Hartack, Grant To Compete

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eddie Arcaro signed Tuesday to ride Pin Oak Farm's Derrick in the Pimlico Futurity Saturday, completing a stellar jockey lineup for the big race.

The three leading riders of the year in winners, Willie Shoemaker, Howard Grant and Bill Hartack, will be competing against the veteran Arcaro.

A wide open scramble shapes up in the mile and a sixteenth test for two year olds, and if a dozen start the gross purse will be $172,520 with a net of $123,171 to the winner.

Derrick is trained by Ivan Parke, the Pin Oak trainer who last year saddled Maine Chance Farm's Jewel's Reward to victory in the futurity.

Probable favorite is Brookfield Farm's Intentionally, conqueror of First Landing in the Belmont Futurity, to be ridden by Shoemaker. Grant will be aboard Briardale Farms' Rico Tesio, and Hartack on King Ranch's Black Hills.

Arcaro, who has more winners of the Preakness and Pimlico Special than any other jockey, has never ridden a winner in the Futurity. The race has amounted to a jinx for him since he won in 1936 on Privileged but was disqualified for a foul, placed last and suspended for six months.

Arcaro Will Ride Derrick In Futurity

Shoemaker, Hartack, Grant To Compete

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eddie Arcaro signed Tuesday to ride Pin Oak Farm's Derrick in the Pimlico Futurity Saturday, completing a stellar jockey lineup for the big race.

The three leading riders of the year in winners, Willie Shoemaker, Howard Grant and Bill Hartack, will be competing against the veteran Arcaro.

A wide open scramble shapes up in the mile and a sixteenth test for two year olds, and if a dozen start the gross purse will be $172,520 with a net of $123,171 to the winner.

Derrick is trained by Ivan Parke, the Pin Oak trainer who last year saddled Maine Chance Farm's Jewel's Reward to victory in the futurity.

Probable favorite is Brookfield Farm's Intentionally, conqueror of First Landing in the Belmont Futurity, to be ridden by Shoemaker. Grant will be aboard Briardale Farms' Rico Tesio, and Hartack on King Ranch's Black Hills.

Arcaro, who has more winners of the Preakness and Pimlico Special than any other jockey, has never ridden a winner in the Futurity. The race has amounted to a jinx for him since he won in 1936 on Privileged but was disqualified for a foul, placed last and suspended for six months.

Veteran Gas Distributor Is Honored

R. B. MacBeth, who retired November 1 after 40 years' service, was honored at a dinner last night at the Fort Cumberland Hotel by management and employes of Fairmont District of Esso Standard Oil Company.

MacBeth, who resides at Narrows Park, has been general field representative for the company here for 30 years and was one of the industry's pioneers in this area.

When he first affiliated with Esso at the Narrows plant, MacBeth was plant supervisor and five years later was given the combined job of town salesman and plant supervisor. He served in that position five years before becoming field representative.

When he started in February, 1919, MacBeth said the horse and wagon were the main transportation and only seven gasoline pumps were located in Allegany County. Gasoline sold for about 22 cents a gallon without taxes which means that the fuel actually is cheaper today than it was then, he said. Most sales were of kerosene and industrial oil by the barrel.

From this small beginning, MacBeth has seen the industry develop to major proportions here and his company pioneered in the development of service stations which today number 57 in Cumberland alone.

MacBeth said he plans to "keep busy. There are plenty of things to do."

He has a daughter Mrs. Joan Sawada of New York City, and two grandchildren. His wife died four years ago.

Ministerial Group Elects

Capt. Daniel Biggs, commander of the Salvation Army Citadel, yesterday was elected president of the Cumberland Ministerial Association at a meeting in Central YMCA.

He succeeds Rev. William Snyder, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran Church who was named to the executive board.

Other officers named are Rev. E. E. Miller, pastor of First Brethren Church, vice president; and Rev. Wayne Eberly, pastor of Living Stone Church of the Brethren, secretary-treasurer.

Other new executive committee members are Rev. Jacob Snyder, pastor of Kingsley Methodist Church, and Rev. Randolph Keefe, pastor of Grace Baptist Church.

The first meeting of the executive board will be Sunday at 9 p. m. in Grace Baptist Church. Capt. Biggs said committees for the association's annual functions will be selected.

The ministerial group's next meeting will be Monday, December 15, at 11 a. m. in the YMCA.

City and U. S. Corps of Engineers officials will meet here today at 2 p. m. for discussions on the purpose and operation of the Cumberland-Ridgeley flood control project.

The meeting will be held in the office of Mayor J. Edwin Keech who said the engineers requested the session. City Engineer Charles R. Spheres of responsibility as they affect the city and government and finances are also on the schedule for airing.

Babysitter Course Is Extended

The Recreation Department-sponsored instruction course for babysitters has been extended at the request of those enrolled, Mrs. Hogan, assistant recreation director, said yesterday.

The course is held on Wednesdays from 4 to 5 p. m. at City Hall Auditorium.

Mrs. Hogan said those enrolled had asked further instruction in first aid and games for tots and toddlers. The course is open to all interested in babysitting whether they are registered with the department or not, Mrs. Hogan said.

Twenty girls representing Fort Hill and Allegany High Schools and Ursuline Academy are registered for the instruction, Mrs. Hogan added.

Gets Building Permit

L. Leslie Helmer, Braddock Road, has obtained a permit from the building engineer to construct a dwelling in Dingle Heights Addition on Lots 6, 7 and 8. Cost of the one-story, 40 by 68 foot block and brick building is estimated at $15,000.

DEATH LIGHT

NEWCASTLE, England (UPI)—City officials, alarmed by the rate of traffic accidents, announced Tuesday they would erect a "death light" atop a 90-foot monument in the center of Newcastle. The light, normally white, will be switched to red for three days after every new traffic death.

Veteran Gas Distributor Is Honored

R. B. MacBeth, who retired November 1 after 40 years' service, was honored at a dinner last night at the Fort Cumberland Hotel by management and employes of Fairmont District of Esso Standard Oil Company.

MacBeth, who resides at Narrows Park, has been general field representative for the company here for 30 years and was one of the industry's pioneers in this area.

When he first affiliated with Esso at the Narrows plant, MacBeth was plant supervisor and five years later was given the combined job of town salesman and plant supervisor. He served in that position five years before becoming field representative.

When he started in February, 1919, MacBeth said the horse and wagon were the main transportation and only seven gasoline pumps were located in Allegany County. Gasoline sold for about 22 cents a gallon without taxes which means that the fuel actually is cheaper today than it was then, he said. Most sales were of kerosene and industrial oil by the barrel.

From this small beginning, MacBeth has seen the industry develop to major proportions here and his company pioneered in the development of service stations which today number 57 in Cumberland alone.

MacBeth said he plans to "keep busy. There are plenty of things to do."

He has a daughter Mrs. Joan Sawada of New York City, and two grandchildren. His wife died four years ago.

Ministerial Group Elects

Capt. Daniel Biggs, commander of the Salvation Army Citadel, yesterday was elected president of the Cumberland Ministerial Association at a meeting in Central YMCA.

He succeeds Rev. William Snyder, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran Church who was named to the executive board.

Other officers named are Rev. E. E. Miller, pastor of First Brethren Church, vice president; and Rev. Wayne Eberly, pastor of Living Stone Church of the Brethren, secretary-treasurer.

Other new executive committee members are Rev. Jacob Snyder, pastor of Kingsley Methodist Church, and Rev. Randolph Keefe, pastor of Grace Baptist Church.

The first meeting of the executive board will be Sunday at 9 p. m. in Grace Baptist Church. Capt. Biggs said committees for the association's annual functions will be selected.

The ministerial group's next meeting will be Monday, December 15, at 11 a. m. in the YMCA.

DIEFENBAKER IN INDIA

NEW DELHI, India (UPI)—Canadian Prime Minister John Diefenbaker arrived here Tuesday for a five-day visit that will be highlighted by extensive talks with Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru. The world touring Canadian leader flew here from Pakistan. Nehru was at the airport to greet Diefenbaker and his wife.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends for the kindness and sympathy shown us in our bereavement, the death of our beloved husband and father, John W. Hanft. We want to thank Rev. George E. Bowersox, those who sent floral tributes and the pall-bearers.
ELLA M. HANFT AND DAUGHTERS

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Frances Bone Hunter, who died Nov. 18, 1937.

When we step beyond life's gateway,
As our loved now has gone,
We shall find a land of beauty,
With an ever setting sun.
Sleep today, Oh dearest Frances,
In thy green and narrow bed,
Petals from our own white roses,
Mingle with the tears we shed.

Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER, CHILDREN and BROTHERS.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends for the kindness and sympathy shown us in our bereavement, the death of our beloved husband and father, John W. Hanft. We want to thank Rev. George E. Bowersox, those who sent floral tributes and the pall-bearers.
ELLA M. HANFT AND DAUGHTERS

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Frances Bone Hunter, who died Nov. 18, 1937.

When we step beyond life's gateway,
As our loved now has gone,
We shall find a land of beauty,
With an ever setting sun.
Sleep today, Oh dearest Frances,
In thy green and narrow bed,
Petals from our own white roses,
Mingle with the tears we shed.

Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER, CHILDREN and BROTHERS.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Grain futures prices closed steady to firm Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat closed off ⅛ to ⅝ cents; corn (old) up ⅜ to ½ cent; corn (new) up ⅛ to ½ cent; oats unchanged to up ⅛ cent; rye off ⅞ to up ¼ cent; soybeans off ⅛ to up ⅜ cent.

December wheat, strong in recent sessions, weakened today in a slow trade. March and December contracts were under some buying pressure from an elevator and several commission houses.

Commercial buying had the steam up throughout the session and pushed corn into firm levels. Hedge selling was slight. Orders to buy December and March corn were placed by commission houses.

In oats, commission houses sold. December oats suffered most of the loss. Cash houses did little buying. There was some investment demand for May oats.

Not much activity was stirring in soybean pits. Northwest brokers sold January beans; processors bought. The meal market was strong. Today was the final day for trading in the November delivery.

Grains at outside markets moved about steady. The range:

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Grain futures prices closed steady to firm Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat closed off ⅛ to ⅝ cents; corn (old) up ⅝ to ½ cent; corn (new) up ⅛ to ½ cent; oats unchanged to up ⅛ cent; rye off ⅛ to up ¼ cent; soybeans off ⅛ to up ⅝ cent.

December wheat, strong in recent sessions, weakened today in a slow trade. March and December contracts were under some buying pressure from an elevator and several commission houses.

Commercial buying had the steam up throughout the session and pushed corn into firm levels. Hedge selling was slight. Orders to buy December and March corn were placed by commission houses.

In oats, commission houses sold. December oats suffered most of the loss. Cash houses did little buying. There was some investment demand for May oats.

Not much activity was stirring in soybean pits. Northwest brokers sold January beans; processors bought. The meal market was strong. Today was the final day for trading in the November delivery.

Grains at outside markets moved about steady. The range:

Market's Latest Climb To Record Highs Halted

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market Tuesday backed away from the new highs set in the two previous sessions on reduced volume.

Late support brought the market up from its lows and left the main list dotted with gains running past 2 points. However, the market was lower on balance.

A loss of 5⅜ points in Eastman Kodak did most of the damage in the industrial average, which finished at 564.89, off 2.55 points from Monday. The railroad average slipped 0.35-point to 156.11, despite a gain of 2½ in Norfolk & Western.

The 2-point spurt in Cleveland Electric offset a major fractional decline in Houston Lighting and left the utility average slightly higher on the day—up 0.02 to 87.35.

The average of the 65 stocks used in compiling the three Dow-Jones averages closed at 196.59, off 0.62. The market's loss in stock values amounted to around 500 million dollars, which was about one-fourth of the gain rung up in the two previous sessions.

The sharp decline in Eastman Kodak came despite the fact directors declared an extra dividend and paid out more this year than last. However, market men said Wall Street quarters had anticipated a bigger extra.

Writer's cramp may so affect the central nervous system that the hand can never be used again to write with pen or pencil, although it is still normal in every other way.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♥	Double
Pass	2 ♣	2 ♥	3 ♣
3 ♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: ♠ king.

The underlead of an ace in defensive play is frequently made for deceptive purposes in order to put declarer to a guess as to the location of the outstanding honors.

In many cases, however, the underlead is made because of the necessity for finding partner with the card which will give him an entry in a hurry.

In today's hand West executed the play but not with deceptive intent, for the bidding had made it abundantly clear that he held the ace.

Nor was it made to gain immediate entry, for it was evident that dummy's king would win the trick. Actually it was for the purpose of creating a later entry into partner's hand if he happened to have the queen.

Transfer of the lead to partner could be postponed for one round but after that speed was of the essence.

The competitive nature of the bidding is accounted for by the fact that North and South held a part score of 60 points.

West's take-out double elicited a two club response from East but even after West carried the fight into the three level, East felt his values were too barren to continue the contest when North bid three hearts.

West opened the king of spades and East played the five. With the imposing diamond suit in dummy, West felt it was necessary to get East in with reasonable promptness in order to come through the queen of spades declarer obviously held.

While West still held the king of hearts, he maintained control of the hand, so he led a low club. Declarer had no difficulty in going up with the king, but East signaled with the eight.

Declarer felt constrained to try the trump finesse and when West got in with the king of hearts he led another low club. East's spade return then sent declarer down for a one trick set.

Secrets Of Charm

Party-Pretty Looks

A pretty evening dress makes any girl a little more enchanting. But, like the setting of a jewel, a low decolletage displays your perfection or points up your flaws. It takes real care to create real party-pretty looks.

Of course, I know that no woman strives for anything less than perfection of her beauty on formal occasions. The trouble is, there are a lot of mistaken notions of perfection.

There's the overdone hair-do with "every hair in place"—yes, plastered right to the head, probably corkscrew curled and certainly styled in an exaggerated way! It's a delusion that appears only on the heads of those who have not learned that it's the natural appearance that charms.

Such disasters can and should be avoided by having your hair done in advance of the big evening in a sleek style that is becoming to you. Then, if you protect it in a net for sleeping and brush "in" the waves and curls as often as you get a chance, your coiffure will look soft, shining and as though it belongs to you — not the hairdresser.

Your manicure, pedicure, deodorant and depilatory activities should be completed on the previous day, and each detail of your costume checked as well.

Such thoughtful scheduling will leave you plenty of leisure for those final touches. You'll have 10 minutes for a fragrant, bubbly bath, followed by a complete body rub with creamy lotion. (Pay special attention to smoothing your neck, shoulders, back, arms, elbows and hands. Rub up from your fingertips until you've covered the entire surface your dress leaves exposed.) Twenty minutes now for a nap with your feet elevated and your eyes covered with cold cotton pads. Fifteen minutes to don your clothes with luxurious care.

Among the greatest party-night sins committed in the name of perfection is the coating of your face with cosmetics until it resembles the dead-pan visage of a store window mannequin. There's no surer way to cancel out the beautiful effect of all your previous pains.

A natural looking make-up never results from seeing how much of the stuff you can use, but how skillfully you can use it. It takes just fifteen minutes to attain perfection this way: A sparing layer of foundation that matches your skin tones; a faint glow of rouge; a pink-tinged powder to off-set the yellow glare of night lights; a clear, bright lipstick (not purply); a whisk of eyeshadow and a flick of mascara; an eyebrow brush and hair brush grooming.

Market's Latest Climb To Record Highs Halted

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market Tuesday backed away from the new highs set in the two previous sessions on reduced volume.

Late support brought the market up from its lows and left the main list dotted with gains running past 2 points. However, the market was lower on balance.

A loss of 5⅜ points in Eastman Kodak did most of the damage in the industrial average, which finished at 564.89, off 2.55 points from Monday. The railroad average slipped 0.35-point to 156.11, despite a gain of 2½ in Norfolk & Western.

The 2-point spurt in Cleveland Electric offset a major fractional decline in Houston Lighting and left the utility average slightly higher on the day—up 0.02 to 87.35.

The average of the 65 stocks used in compiling the three Dow-Jones averages closed at 196.59, off 0.62. The market's loss in stock values amounted to around 500 million dollars, which was about one-fourth of the gain rung up in the two previous sessions.

The sharp decline in Eastman Kodak came despite the fact directors declared an extra dividend and paid out more this year than last. However, market men said Wall Street quarters had anticipated a bigger extra.

The bidding:

Pass	2 ♣	2 ♥	3 ♣
3 ♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: ♠ king.

The underlead of an ace in defensive play is frequently made for deceptive purposes in order to put declarer to a guess as to the location of the outstanding honors.

In many cases, however, the underlead is made because of the necessity for finding partner with the card which will give him an entry in a hurry.

In today's hand West executed the play but not with deceptive intent, for the bidding had made it abundantly clear that he held the ace.

Nor was it made to gain immediate entry, for it was evident that dummy's king would win the trick. Actually it was for the purpose of creating a later entry into partner's hand if he happened to have the queen.

Transfer of the lead to partner could be postponed for one round but after that speed was of the essence.

The competitive nature of the bidding is accounted for by the fact that North and South held a part score of 60 points.

West's take-out double elicited a two club response from East but even after West carried the fight into the three level, East felt his values were too barren to continue the contest when North bid three hearts.

West opened the king of spades and East played the five. With the imposing diamond suit in dummy, West felt it was necessary to get East in with reasonable promptness in order to come through the queen of spades declarer obviously held.

While West still held the king of hearts, he maintained control of the hand, so he led a low club. Declarer had no difficulty in going up with the king, but East signaled with the eight.

Declarer felt constrained to try the trump finesse and when West got in with the king of hearts he led another low club. East's spade return then sent declarer down for a one trick set.

Secrets Of Charm

Party-Pretty Looks

A pretty evening dress makes any girl a little more enchanting. But, like the setting of a jewel, a low decolletage displays your perfection or points up your flaws. It takes real care to create real party-pretty looks.

Of course, I know that no woman strives for anything less than perfection of her beauty on formal occasions. The trouble is, there are a lot of mistaken notions of perfection.

There's the overdone hair-do with "every hair in place"—yes, plastered right to the head, probably corkscrew curled and certainly styled in an exaggerated way! It's a delusion that appears only on the heads of those who have not learned that it's the natural appearance that charms.

Such disasters can and should be avoided by having your hair done in advance of the big evening in a sleek style that is becoming to you. Then, if you protect it in a net for sleeping and brush "in" the waves and curls as often as you get a chance, your coiffure will look soft, shining and as though it belongs to you — not the hairdresser.

Your manicure, pedicure, deodorant and depilatory activities should be completed on the previous day, and each detail of your costume checked as well.

Such thoughtful scheduling will leave you plenty of leisure for those final touches. You'll have 10 minutes for a fragrant, bubbly bath, followed by a complete body rub with creamy lotion. (Pay special attention to smoothing your neck, shoulders, back, arms, elbows and hands. Rub up from your fingertips until you've covered the entire surface your dress leaves exposed.) Twenty minutes now for a nap with your feet elevated and your eyes covered with cold cotton pads. Fifteen minutes to don your clothes with luxurious care.

Among the greatest party-night sins committed in the name of perfection is the coating of your face with cosmetics until it resembles the dead-pan visage of a store window mannequin. There's no surer way to cancel out the beautiful effect of all your previous pains.

A natural looking make-up never results from seeing how much of the stuff you can use, but how skillfully you can use it. It takes just fifteen minutes to attain perfection this way: A sparing layer of foundation that matches your skin tones; a faint glow of rouge; a pink-tinged powder to off-set the yellow glare of night lights; a clear, bright lipstick (not purply); a whisk of eyeshadow and a flick of mascara; an eyebrow brush and hair brush grooming.

Luke Workers Defer Action On Paper Pact

Want Agreement At New York Mill

Luke Local 676, United Papermakers and Paperworkers, AFL-CIO, voted yesterday to defer ratification of a new contract until notification is received that a satisfactory agreement has been reached at West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company's Mechanicville, N. Y., mill.

This is one part of a three-point plan agreed upon at two membership meetings of Local 676 yesterday.

Wilbur Johnson, president of Local 676, said that at the special meetings, the local's negotiating committee was authorized:

Agree On Plan

1. To send a telegram to David Luke, Westvaco president, informing him of the seriousness of the negotiations.

2. To call special meetings at any time it sees fit for the purpose of taking strike action or to ratify a contract.

3. To restate the local's position that no contract will be ratified until notification is received of a satisfactory agreement at the Mechanicville mill.

Mr. Johnson said the Luke local took the same position as Local 675 at Covington, Va., Sunday.

He added that if a strike vote is taken, it will be by secret ballot.

The action taken at Luke yesterday is identical to the Covington action, except for the proposal to appeal to Mr. Luke.

Delay Is Costly

Company officials point out that delays in signing the agreement will cost employes of the Luke, Covington and Williamsburg, Pa., mills $10,000 a week in wage increases.

Members of the Williamsburg mill held similar contract meetings yesterday, but no word was available late last night on the action taken there.

Officials of the firm said the Mechanicville mill has no connection with the Luke, Covington and Williamsburg mills and has never been a member of the bargaining unit.

Union Says PPG Has Made No New Pact Offer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—International President Ralph Reiser of the United Glass and Ceramics Workers reported Tuesday that the union has received no new company settlement proposals in the long walkout against Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. since negotiations broke up early this month.

Reiser conferred here with the presidents of seven local unions involved in the walkout which started Oct. 10 and has idled 12,000 workers at 10 PPG plants in seven cities. Non-economic issues such as manpower and production standards were reported blocking a settlement.

With the shutdown in its 40th day, the National Combination Window and Door Institute appealed to both sides to settle their differences to avoid further spread of unemployment.

David E. Winnick, executive director of the group, said the recent upturn in business conditions had given his industry hopes of breaking-even if orders continued to come in.

"With prolongation of the strike, many firms face austerity and their employes layoffs or dismissals. If the settlement is further delayed, the season will pass with disastrous results to the industry."

City Will Get $4,378 From Idle Funds

Money Is Invested In Treasury Bills

The City of Cumberland is adding $4,378 to its income this winter by investing some $650,000 of surplus tax money and water revenue in U. S. Treasury 90-day bills.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, finance commissioner, said the city is getting an average return of about 2.7 per cent on the money, which will not be needed during the next few months.

The money, which is being invested in United States securities, includes tax funds and water revenues which are not immediately needed as well as bond funds which will not be required for a few months.

Will Reinvest

Mrs. Roeder said that as the bills mature, the city will make another study of its immediate financial needs and reinvest any temporary surplus funds.

The returns from the current investments represent about ⅔ of a cent on the tax rate. In the current levy, the city gets about $7,800 for each cent on the rate.

Last year, the city earned $5,211.50 from its General Fund alone, and another $4,023.90 from water revenues and unneeded water bond funds. This is probably better than can be earned this year, as rates were higher—about 3½ per cent—last year.

Brought In $40,000

During the construction of the city's sewage treatment plant, reinvestment of returns from the $2,000,000 bond issue brought in some $40,000.

Funds realized from the sale of the bonds were placed in Treasury bills with maturities spaced to meet payments due the contractor.

Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, recalled yesterday that only once was it necessary to sell an issue 10 days ahead of maturity to meet the city's obligations on the plant.

Higher Parking Fines Continue To Take Toll

Motorists continued to pay fines for parking violations yesterday as Cumberland's new traffic ordinance took its toll.

The Cumberland Police Department collected fines for 61 violations yesterday and at 10 p.m. reported $142 collected from the erring drivers.

These imposts included 18 tickets for illegal parking, nine tickets for overtime parking on yellow lines, and 34 tickets for meter violations. Total revenue collected from parking fines in the first four days the regulations have been in effect amounts to nearly $600.

Man Is Jailed For Non-Support

Francis Densmore, 39, of Westernport, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction yesterday in Juvenile Court on a charge of non-support.

Magistrate Fred H. Anderson found Densmore guilty of not providing support for his wife and minor child. Magistrate Anderson said it was the third time Densmore had been in the court on this charge.

Distortion Of Tax Facts Is Charged

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Railroads operating in West Virginia were accused Tuesday of distorting the facts when they proposed last July that the state transportation privilege tax on rails be lowered and the levy on other carriers be increased.

Charleston attorney John C. White, speaking in behalf of the West Virginia Motor Truck Assn., told the Legislature's two main interim committees his organization does not contest the efforts of the railroads "to legitimately argue their own case for a reduction in tax rates."

"But let it also be clearly understood that it does bitterly oppose the use of propaganda, distortion and inflammatory language such as that which is resorted to in the rails' memorandum," he added.

In Opposition

Representatives of the West Virginia Bus Assn., and the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. also appeared in opposition to the railroads' proposal.

The interim committees then adjourned a two-day meeting.

Bus Assn. attorney Homer Hanna Jr. said bus firms were unable to absorb the present tax burden and any additional tax "would force many carriers to cease operating and force others to further curtail what service they are able to maintain at the present time."

C&P Counsel John G. Fox, former West Virginia attorney general, said to "penalize" his company with a 14 per cent tax increase as proposed by the Railroad Assn. would "jeopardize our ability . . . to live on our present rate structure."

White charged that the railroads suggested "without any justification" that their tax be cut by at least one-third and that the tax on other carriers be increased "by as much as 100 per cent or more."

Tonnage Doubled

He said that although the railroads claimed that their share of freight traffic between 1940 and 1956 has dropped to less than 50 per cent, their tonnage has almost doubled in the same period.

The railroads had proposed that the state tax levy on intrastate transportation by bus companies be increased from 1.5 per cent to 3 per cent and that on interstate transportation from 1.5 per cent up to 5 per cent of gross receipts.

The committees, which meet again some time next month, earlier approved a bill proposed by State Geologist Paul H. Price which would validate existing county boundaries.

The committees also deferred until their next meeting discussion of the needs of the Public Service Commission, revision of the bill which created the State Department of Finance and Administration and a proposed bill to regulate the licensing of land surveyors.

Bedford Man Unhurt As Car Upsets

A 37-year-old Bedford, Pa., man escaped serious injury early yesterday morning in a spectacular one-car crash on Bedford Street near the city limits.

Robert H. Ott, employed on the flood control project here, sustained only a broken tooth in the accident which demolished his car about 7 a. m.

The Bedford man told police he fell asleep at the wheel of his automobile as he was driving to work. The vehicle veered to the right and struck a stone wall about 100 yards or so from the Frederick Street - Bedford Street crossover at the city limits on U. S. 220 north.

The force of the collision with the stone wall caused the car to cross over, hit an embankment and turn upside down in the middle of Bedford Street. The driver was able to walk away from the accident. Police said they couldn't understand how he hadn't been killed or seriously hurt in the mishap.

City Police directed traffic around the overturned vehicle until it could be removed from the scene. Traffic was delayed during the operation of righting the car to be towed away, they said.

Luke Workers Defer Action On Paper Pact

Want Agreement At New York Mill

Luke Local 676, United Papermakers and Paperworkers, AFL-CIO, voted yesterday to defer ratification of a new contract until notification is received that a satisfactory agreement has been reached at West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company's Mechanicville, N. Y., mill.

This is one part of a three-point plan agreed upon at two membership meetings of Local 676 yesterday.

Wilbur Johnson, president of Local 676, said that at the special meetings, the local's negotiating committee was authorized:

Agree On Plan

1. To send a telegram to David Luke, Westvaco president, informing him of the seriousness of the negotiations.

2. To call special meetings at any time it sees fit for the purpose of taking strike action or to ratify a contract.

3. To restate the local's position that no contract will be ratified until notification is received of a satisfactory agreement at the Mechanicville mill.

Mr. Johnson said the Luke local took the same position as Local 675 at Covington, Va., Sunday.

He added that if a strike vote is taken, it will be by secret ballot.

The action taken at Luke yesterday is identical to the Covington action, except for the proposal to appeal to Mr. Luke.

Delay Is Costly

Company officials point out that delays in signing the agreement will cost employes of the Luke, Covington and Williamsburg, Pa., mills $10,000 a week in wage increases.

Members of the Williamsburg mill held similar contract meetings yesterday, but no word was available late last night on the action taken there.

Officials of the firm said the Mechanicville mill has no connection with the Luke, Covington and Williamsburg mills and has never been a member of the bargaining unit.

Union Says PPG Has Made No New Pact Offer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—International President Ralph Reiser of the United Glass and Ceramics Workers reported Tuesday that the union has received no new company settlement proposals in the long walkout against Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. since negotiations broke up early this month.

Reiser conferred here with the presidents of seven local unions involved in the walkout which started Oct. 10 and has idled 12,000 workers at 10 PPG plants in seven cities. Non-economic issues such as manpower and production standards were reported blocking a settlement.

With the shutdown in its 40th day, the National Combination Window and Door Institute appealed to both sides to settle their differences to avoid further spread of unemployment.

David E. Winnick, executive director of the group, said the recent upturn in business conditions had given his industry hopes of breaking-even if orders continued to come in.

"With prolongation of the strike, many firms face austerity and their employes layoffs or dismissals. If the settlement is further delayed, the season will pass with disastrous results to the industry."

City Will Get $4,378 From Idle Funds

Money Is Invested In Treasury Bills

The City of Cumberland is adding $4,378 to its income this winter by investing some $650,000 of surplus tax money and water revenue in U. S. Treasury 90-day bills.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, finance commissioner, said the city is getting an average return of about 2.7 per cent on the money, which will not be needed during the next few months.

The money, which is being invested in United States securities, includes tax funds and water revenues which are not immediately needed as well as bond funds which will not be required for a few months.

Will Reinvest

Mrs. Roeder said that as the bills mature, the city will make another study of its immediate financial needs and reinvest any temporary surplus funds.

The returns from the current investments represent about ⅔ of a cent on the tax rate. In the current levy, the city gets about $7,800 for each cent on the rate.

Last year, the city earned $5,211.50 from its General Fund alone, and another $4,023.90 from water revenues and unneeded water bond funds. This is probably better than can be earned this year, as rates were higher—about 3½ per cent—last year.

Brought In $40,000

During the construction of the city's sewage treatment plant, reinvestment of returns from the $2,000,000 bond issue brought in some $40,000.

Funds realized from the sale of the bonds were placed in Treasury bills with maturities spaced to meet payments due the contractor.

Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, recalled yesterday that only once was it necessary to sell an issue 10 days ahead of maturity to meet the city's obligations on the plant.

Distortion Of Tax Facts Is Charged

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Railroads operating in West Virginia were accused Tuesday of distorting the facts when they proposed last July that the state transportation privilege tax on rails be lowered and the levy on other carriers be increased.

Charleston attorney John C. White, speaking in behalf of the West Virginia Motor Truck Assn., told the Legislature's two main interim committees his organization does not contest the efforts of the railroads "to legitimately argue their own case for a reduction in tax rates."

"But let it also be clearly understood that it does bitterly oppose the use of propaganda, distortion and inflammatory language such as that which is resorted to in the rails' memorandum," he added.

In Opposition

Representatives of the West Virginia Bus Assn., and the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. also appeared in opposition to the railroads' proposal.

The interim committees then adjourned a two-day meeting.

Bus Assn. attorney Homer Hanna Jr. said bus firms were unable to absorb the present tax burden and any additional tax "would force many carriers to cease operating and force others to further curtail what service they are able to maintain at the present time."

C&P Counsel John G. Fox, former West Virginia attorney general, said to "penalize" his company with a 14 per cent tax increase as proposed by the Railroad Assn. would "jeopardize our ability . . . to live on our present rate structure."

White charged that the railroads suggested "without any justification" that their tax be cut by at least one-third and that the tax on other carriers be increased "by as much as 100 per cent or more."

Tonnage Doubled

He said that although the railroads claimed that their share of freight traffic between 1940 and 1956 has dropped to less than 50 per cent, their tonnage has almost doubled in the same period.

The railroads had proposed that the state tax levy on intrastate transportation by bus companies be increased from 1.5 per cent to 3 per cent and that on interstate transportation from 1.5 per cent up to 5 per cent of gross receipts.

The committees, which meet again some time next month, earlier approved a bill proposed by State Geologist Paul H. Price which would validate existing county boundaries.

The committees also deferred until their next meeting discussion of the needs of the Public Service Commission, revision of the bill which created the State Department of Finance and Administration and a proposed bill to regulate the licensing of land surveyors.
